Parade Marks Opening of Southeastern Fair Today

BRIEF CEREMONY PLANNED AT GATE; KEY TO TAKE PART

Mayor Will Be Presented
With Traditional Key to Grounds; Prize-Winning Float To Get Handsome Silver Trophy.

EIGHT-DAY EVENT TO DRAW THROGHS

Enormous Crowds for Annual Event Expected
by Officials; All Special
"Day" Programs Ready.

Officially opening the 1931 Southeastern Fair, a huge parade in which representatives of city, county and state will ride, and which will include almost 20 large floats, will proceed along its downtown lines of march at 11 o'clock this morning to Lakewood park, where a brief ceremony will precede the official opening of the gates where during the next eight days thousands will throng at the hundreds of exhibit stands and display rooms.

The parade will form on Peachtree street at North avenue at 10:30, and will march south on Peachtree and Whitehall streets to Mitchell, turning east to Pryor and thence out to the fair grounds, where Mayor James L. Key will be presented with a key to the exposition grounds and the silver trophy will be awarded to the most attractive float in the parade.

Irvin Allen, chairman of the judges of entries, and Mel Wilkinson, C. Arthur Kitchings, Colonel Frederic J. Paxson and B. S. Barker will have the task of selecting the most representative float in the parade.

Gates open at 8 A. M.

Gates at Lakewood park will open at 8 o'clock this morning, and an hour later all exposition buildings will be open. At 11 o'clock the midway will be ready for the enormous throngs expected to try their luck on the games of chance or on the high-raising amusement devices, which will remain open until the last light of extinguished next Saturday night.

Sunday has been designated as "free day" at the fair, and visitors will not be charged an admission price through the gates, which will be open from 1 in the afternoon until 11 that night. The amusement devices will be open on Sunday.

Monday has been set aside as "school day" with reduced admission rates for school children and teachers. On "school day" the gates will be open at 8 A. M., and all buildings will be ready for inspection an hour later. A statewide spelling bee will be held near the fair headquarters at 1 p. m., and 11 prizes ranging in value from $100 to $8 have been provided for the winners. Grandstand performance will feature the day with a concert by the fair orchestra at 2:30 p. m. to 5 p. m. Monday, and at 7:30 p. m. another grandstand performance with a concert by the fair orchestra at 9 o'clock Monday night. A gigantic fireworks display has been scheduled.

Tuesday "Sports Day."

Tuesday will be "sports day" at the fair. Gates will open at 8 A. M. as usual, and at 12:15 p. m. a sports car parade will be held in the downtown section, following the line of march observed by today's opening parade. Motor boat races, tennis matches, swimming, track meets, golf driving contests and wrestling and boxing will hold sway during "sports day."

On Wednesday the fair will devote itself to observance of "Georgia and Greater Atlanta day," under the program arranged by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, of which Albert Howell, Jr., is chairman. He is chairman of the Junior Chamber and officials of the fair association will meet at the chamber building for a delegation which will call at the capitol for Governor Russell, at the city hall for Mayor Key, and at the courthouse for Walter Hendrix. At 11 a. m. the official party will visit all exhibits, and a luncheon will be served.

Cannon Raps Mouzon For Alleged Slight

BISHOP MOUZON.

ROANOKE, Va., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon Jr. today criticized Presiding Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon on the floor at the Baltimore conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for alleged discourtesy to him as a visiting bishop.

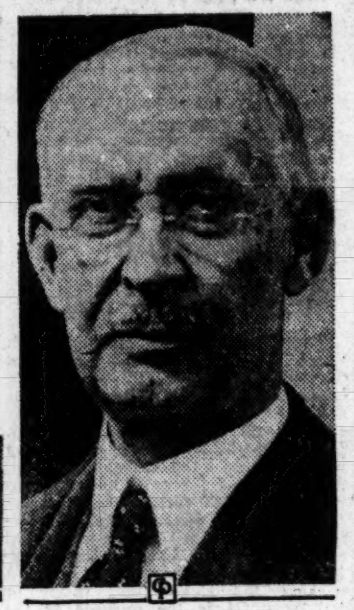

Delivering what he called a "farewell address," he said in the 43 years he had been attending the conferences he never had seen one bishop so humble another.

Bishop Mouzon listened to the verbal attack and ended the session without replying.

"Whatever may be the personal attitude of the presiding bishop, he is representative of the church in his official activities and I as a bishop of our great church cannot accept such treatment without an expression of my amazement," Bishop Cannon said.

"While I have no personal feeling in this matter I have been amazed that any bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, should be so unwary or intentionally unmindful of the courtesy so uniform under such circumstances as to request a visit of our own church to rise to be introduced from the floor without any invitation at that time or at any other time, either publicly or personally, to take a seat upon the platform."

Bishop Cannon told newspapermen after the session that Bishop Mouzon had sent him a telegram asking him not to come to the conference or to make a speech.

Tonight Bishop Cannon issued a supplementary statement in which he said: "The conference was not discourteous, but, in my judgment, the presiding bishop was."

"Some of the afternoon papers stated that Bishop Cannon scored the Baltimore conference and especially Bishop Mouzon for discourtesy statements," the statement read. "This is incorrect. The Baltimore conference showed Bishop Cannon no discourtesy. On the contrary, the press reports that there was much applause when Bishop Cannon was introduced and there was great applause at the close of his address today."

After repeating parts of his address, which had expressed appreciation of evidences of esteem and affection shown by members of the conference, Bishop Cannon's statement concluded, "The rest of the statement expressed amazement that the presiding bishop was unaware or intentionally unmindful of the courtesy due to a visiting bishop."

Bishop Cannon, although earlier he had indicated he was taking leave of the conference this afternoon, said

CYR CHALLENGES HUEY LONG'S RIGHT TO GOVERNORSHIP

Louisiana Lieutenant Governor Says He Will File Suit Seeking Ouster of Senator-Governor.

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 2.—(AP) Huey P. Long, whose title as governor of Louisiana has not been legally contested since he defeated impeachment two years ago, was threatened today with a second attempt to oust him from the executive chair.

The threat loomed in the form of a removal suit his political enemy, Lieutenant Governor Paul N. Cyr, today announced he would file against him within the next few days, asserting his own claim to the governorship on grounds that Governor Long had vacated his office by his election to the United States senate.

Cyr said he would file his suit in the Shreveport courts as the legal domicile of the governor. He made the announcement in a telephone conversation from his home in Jeanerette.

"I expect to take the oath of office as governor and to file an ouster against Long," Cyr said. "In that way we will be able to find out who is governor of this state and who is the junior senator from Louisiana. If Long isn't United States senator, then who is?"

Governor Long said he was not bothered about the possibility of his being ousted by any litigation Cyr might bring, and indicated he was much more interested in the outcome of the World Series.

"That won't be any suit," he predicted. "That statement of Cyr's isn't interesting enough to be news." He would not say what his defense would be and declined further comment.

Governor Long has repeatedly said that he would resign as governor when he would be elected to the United States senate. He has only about eight months more to serve.

The suit announcement is the latest chapter in the long account of disputes between Governor Long and the lieutenant governor. Long and Cyr had an exchange of unpleasantness only last night between the two relative to Governor Long's claim he could not head a party of Louisiana State University students to West Point November 7 for the U. S. Army football game because Cyr did not want Cyr to become governor in his absence.

Earlier this week the governor and lieutenant governor engaged in verbal disagreement at a meeting of the state board of liquidation over approval of the latter's annual expense account. Governor Long claimed the board refused Cyr's request for $2,700.

"BONER" IMPERILS ST. LOUIS IN NINTH

Catcher Drops Third
Strike, Then Throws to Third to Fill Bases But Hallahan Pulls Out.

BY ALAN GOULD.
Associated Press Sports Editor.
SPORTSMAN'S PARK, ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Led by a fleet young rookie outfielder, John "Pepper" Martin, the St. Louis Cardinals rode to a 2-0 triumph over the world champion Athletics today on the crest of a sensational shutout performance by Wild Bill Hallahan.

Hallahan, for the second straight year, blanked the champions of the baseball universe. He held them to three singles in a sensational duel with Big George Earnshaw, who tamed all but the ubiquitous and rabbit-footed Martin.

The triumph squared the World Series at one victory apiece. The warring forces wound up their opening skirmishes in the west today and headed for Philadelphia to resume on Monday a battle that has suddenly become a toss-up again.

Martin, a hitting sensation from the outset, ran his total up to five hits in two days. He scored both Cardinals runs today as a result of fast base-running and gave Hallahan the margin of victory, that the gallant southpaw protected in a dramatic, exciting finish that saw the Athletics stopped in the ninth inning with the bases full.

Although his change of pace baffled them and silenced for the most part the big bats of Cochrane, Simmons and Fox throughout the game, Hallahan's wildness put on frequently in hot water. His final jam was in the ninth and Wild Bill needed all his courage to pull safely through a situation that threatened to break up the ball game. He had turned back his foes in the fifth with the bases full and one out as Earnshaw hit into a double play.

Fox walked at the start of the ninth. Dykes also received a pass, Hallahan's seventh free ticket of the game, after Miller flied to Hefey. Dibs Williams, young and over-anxious to come through in the pinch, struck out as he lunged for a bad ball. Then Connie Mack sent Jim Moore up to hit for Earnshaw.

There was a wild yell as Moore also swung and missed the strike. The Cardinals and the crowd thought the game was over. Catcher Jimmy Wilson, who had overthrown the dirt and thrown to third base in a spirit of triumph. But the A's were kept alert by their sideline captain, Eddie Collins, and Moore frequently in first base safely, to fill the bags. Wilson had overlooked the formality of throwing his man out at first.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Prince of Sportsmen Passes in 82d Year Without Winning "Old Mug."

BY P. H. MYRING.
LONDON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Sir Thomas Lipton, fine old sea dog and one of the world's great merchant princes, died today at the age of 81.

The cause of his death was a heart attack which followed a severe chill he caught while motoring several days ago. For the last year his health had been a cause of recurrent anxiety.

Sir Thomas died peacefully in his sleep. Several old friends were at the bedside, but no near relatives, as he is the last of his family.

He died without attaining the great objective of his life, on which he had spent huge sums from a fortune made primarily from tea—the winning of the America's Cup. Instead he won the epitaph, "The world's best loser," and the affectionate admiration of millions on both sides of the Atlantic.

His fifth and last attempt to wrest "that elusive old mug," as he always called the trophy symbolizing yachting supremacy, was made in September last year when the Shamrock V was beaten by the Enterprise off Rhode Island.

Sir Thomas had pinned great hopes on his green-hulled racer and her defeat was a blow to him. He found, however, a great measure of consolation in a loving cup which was presented to him by the Atlantic.

POSTOFFICE WORK WILL START SOON

Laying of Foundation and Tunnels to Get Under Way Next Week.

Construction of the foundations and tunnel of Atlanta's new postoffice building will get under way to a long expected start next week. John A. McDonald, president of the National Construction Company, will arrive here Monday from Washington to begin the work, according to word received Friday from J. T. Rose, collector of internal revenue and custodian of the building, who is in Washington on business.

Delay in getting started on the work has been due to inability to complete contracts with subcontractors, according to dispatches from Washington. The contract for the foundations and tunnel was awarded recently to the National Construction Company, low bidder, builders of Atlanta's new city hall.

A. Ten Eyck Brown, architect, has sent plans for the super-structure to the treasury department and it is expected that a call for bids will be issued in the near future. The post-office building is to reach five stories above the level of the Spring street viaduct, and there will also be a ground floor and a basement.

The largest part of the building is to be devoted to the mail service, but there will also be space for other departments of the federal building.

Sir Thomas' Visit of Years Ago Recalled by Many Friends Here

Although his clean-cut Shamrock never won the America's Cup in the yachting world, his cleaner-cut sportsmanship and his jolly good nature won for him the friendship and admiration of the world at large, and among those to mourn the tea king's passing Friday was a number of Atlantans who had known the old gentleman well.

Many years ago Sir Thomas was a visitor to Atlanta, spending about 10 days as the guest of the Ragan family, of which Willis Ragan was the head. While here the famous sportsman met many citizens, some of whom he remembered until the time of his death.

In London in 1910 for the coronation of King George, Willis Ragan was introduced to Sir Thomas. A prompt friendship sprang up, and be-are all gone. In their places are neophytes soon to become heroes at the Flats.

Coach W. A. Alexander surprised even those closest to the Jacket team by the lineup which he indicated Friday night would start today.

Census Blasts Leap Year Hopes; Men Too Few Here To Go Around

Young women of Atlanta who perchance have been secretly looking forward to leap year—1932—are doomed to disillusionment. Because the discouraging news reached this city Friday that there aren't enough men here to go 'round.

Statistics, cold and immalleable as only census bureau statistics can be, told the sad, sad story in Associated Press dispatches Friday night, that for every 100 women in Atlanta there are only 94 men.

In years gone by Atlanta would have been, on the basis of the census bureau's figures, called the second prettiest city of the United States. But inasmuch as the petticoat nowadays is to most young women, a quaint word in a dictionary, it can only be said that aside from Nashville, Tenn., Atlanta ranks as having more women per population than any other American city.

And Cambridge, Mass., ranks third in the number of women, which, perhaps is but natural when one remembers that it is there Harvard is located, and even the notorious Harvard accent can't drive the girls away.

But the females up in Indiana will get better breaks. Take Gary, for instance. The census bureau proves that for every 100 girls in Gary there are 110.1 men—almost 20 left over in case of emergencies. And there's San Francisco, too. Atlanta girls who find the situation too desperate might run out to "Frisco," where at the present writing there are 114.1 males to every 100 females. And Detroit, ranking third as a he-man town, reports 110 men to each 100 women. But Detroit is risky, because just across the river lies Windsor with its ales and beers and other he-mannish beverages.

SURGEONS OF SOUTH GATHER HERE TODAY

Doctors To Discuss Plans for Conference in Birmingham
Next March.

Matters of outstanding importance will be placed before a conference of surgeons representing the seven southern states when they gather at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel today for a meeting preparatory to the third annual assembly of the Southeastern Surgical Congress which will be held in Birmingham next March.

A large number of distinguished members of the profession will perfect plans for the congress next spring and progress of surgery in the south is expected to be affected by today's meeting.

Among some of the things to be brought to the attention of the congress will be an effort to encourage southern surgeons to write an increasing number of scientific papers, thus giving the rest of the surgical world the benefit of their observations and experience; and to stimulate closer co-operation between the medical profession and medical colleges and hospitals.

Those invited to attend today's meeting are: Drs. Gilbert F. Douglas, Lee P. Turington, S. G. Stubbs and E. Laurence Scott, Birmingham; Dr. W. W. Harper, Selma, Ala.; Dr. Jerre Watson, Anniston, Ala.; Dr. R. S. E. L. Montgomery, Ala.; Drs. Gerry R. Holden, Edward J. J. and Fred Waas, Jacksonville; Dr. Roy Holmes, Miami; Dr. W. W. R. Rickett, Tampa; Dr. W. C. Payne, Pensacola; Dr. C. W. Roberts, E. G. Ballenger, F. K. Boland, B. T. Beasley, Dan Y. Sage and Marion C. Pruitt, Atlanta; Dr. A. J. Mooney, Statesboro, Ga.; Dr. Richard Binion, Milledgeville, Ga.; Dr. H. R. Shands, Jackson, Miss.; Dr. R. D. Kirk, Tupelo, Miss.; Dr. Gus Street, Vicksburg, Miss.; Dr. H. L. Rush, Meridian, Miss.; Dr. John Culley, Oxford, Miss.; Dr. John Darrington, Yazoo City, Miss.; Dr. R. M. Acker, Aberdeen, Miss.; Dr. Russell O. Lydy, Greensboro, N. C.; Dr. D. B. Cobb, Goldsboro, N. C.; Dr. J. D. Highsmith, Fayetteville, N. C.; Dr. W. M. Scruggs, Charlotte; Dr. Julian A. Moore, Asheville; Dr. W. H. Sprunt Jr., Winston-Salem; Dr. J. W. Davis, Statesville, N. C.; Dr. G. T. Tyler Jr., Greenville, S. C.; Dr. F. H. McLeod, Florence, S. C.; Dr. J. R. Young, Anderson, S. C.; Drs. Johnstone Buist and J. S. Rhame, Charleston, S. C.; Dr. J. R. Sparkman, Spartanburg, S. C.; and Dr. LeGrand Guerry, Columbia, S. C.; Drs. Willis C. Campbell and R. L. Sanders, Memphis; Drs. W. D. Haggard and Perry Bromberg, Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. J. W. McClaran, Jackson, Tenn.; Dr. E. T. Newell, Chattanooga; and Dr. V. D. Holloway, Knoxville, and every local fellow is urged to be present.

A. SMITH FUNERAL SET FOR SUNDAY

Funeral services for Ason Smith, 54, of 616 North Highland avenue, N. E., who died Friday morning at the residence, will be held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Peachtree chapel, with the Rev. Richard Orme Flynn and the Rev. S. L. Morris officiating. He will be buried in Oakland cemetery. He is survived by his wife; two sisters, Mrs. F. M. Sutton, of Los Angeles, and Miss Dora H. Smith, of Atlanta, and two nephews and one niece.

Mr. Smith was southeastern representative of Hamilton & Company, Baltimore bond house. He had been a resident of Atlanta for 27 years. He was formerly with the Lowry National bank and the Fourth National bank and was prominent in financial circles here.

INDICTMENTS NAME 9 MORE BELLBOYS

Continuing its probe of alleged vice and liquor traffic in Atlanta hotels, the Fulton grand jury Friday returned 11 more true bills charging misdemeanors against nine negro bellboys. The probe has been under way for about three weeks and has resulted within the last 10 days in a total of 120 indictments and arrest of approximately 50 negro bellboys. Solicitor John A. Boykin has announced that the cases will be aired before Judge E. D. Thomas on October 10.

BIBLE GROUP TO HEAR JUDGE MOORE SUNDAY

Judge Virgil B. Moore, of the Fulton county superior court, will address the T. N. T. Bible class of the Baptist Tabernacle Sunday morning as a part of the class rally day exercises. His subject will be "The Church in Character Building." The class, which was organized eight years ago, will meet at 9:30 o'clock on the mezzanine floor of the Y. M. C. A. building on Luckie street. Miss Irene Landon, soprano, will sing a solo.

BISCAYNE BAY ISLE FORBIDDEN BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—A permit for construction of an island in Biscayne bay, Florida, was revoked today by Acting Secretary Fugate, of the war department.

His action was taken on the ground the island would be an unreasonable obstruction of navigation. The revocation was ordered on recommendation of Major General Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers; Miami Beach property owners had objected vigorously to construction of the island. Backers of the project had planned to operate a horse race track on it.

Periodical Pains Relieved In 3 Minutes

Month after month some women still suffer needless pain, but those who know simply go to a drug store or soda fountain, get a package or dose of "B-C," and get perfect relief in 3 minutes, continuing their duties in pain-free, easy comfort.

"B-C" is the formula of two North Carolina druggists, contains several ingredients that function together for the relief of headache, neuralgia and periodical pains, accomplishing in a few minutes what no one drug formula can do under 1 to 3 hours.

"B-C" stops the pain, quiets the nerves, is perfectly harmless, no other preparation like it. Nothing else gives such profound relief. Ask your druggist, he knows.—(adv.)

ADMIRAL WOODWARD WILL ARRIVE SUNDAY

Naval Officer Will Spend
10-Day Leave With Relatives in Atlanta.

Rear Admiral Clark Howell Woodward will arrive Sunday to spend a ten-day leave of absence visiting relatives in Atlanta. It will be Admiral

ADMIRAL CLARK HOWELL
WOODWARD.

Woodward's first visit to Atlanta in several years.

Admiral Woodward will come from Hampton Roads where he is in command of the light cruiser division of the Atlantic fleet, which is composed of his flagship, the Concord, and four other craft.

The admiral will divide his leave with his sisters, Mrs. Roscoe C. Hearn, Mrs. Julian Chambers and Mrs. Thorne Flagler, and his brothers, Dan Woodward and Harry Woodward.

LAST RITES TODAY FOR P. L. GRAVES

Funeral services for Peyton Leroy Graves, 43, who died from an acute heart attack in his office in the Henry Grady building Thursday morning, will be conducted at 10:30 o'clock this morning from the residence, 675 Lincolnwood avenue. The Rev. S. T. Senter will officiate. Interment will be in West View cemetery. He is survived by his wife; two sons, P. L. Graves Jr., and John Graves; one daughter, Miss Virginia Graves, and one brother, William Graves, of Houston, Texas.

Mr. Graves was general manager of the A. B. and C. railroad, and had been connected with that company since 1914. He was president of the Atlanta Traffic Club, a member of the Masons, the Lions Club, and the Chamber of Commerce. He was born in Montgomery county, Alabama, and spent most of his life in that state and in Georgia. He traveled extensively in the course of his work, and occupied many important positions with several other railway systems before becoming connected with the A. B. and C. His entire experience was in transportation and traffic work.

TALK AT YORKTOWN ASKED OF RUSSELL

Governor Russell was asked by Governor Pollard, of Virginia, in a telegram received by the former Friday, to make a three-minute speech over a nationwide radio hookup Friday night, October 16, at the Yorktown (Va.) sesquicentennial celebration.

Governor Russell said chief executives of all the 13 original states would be asked to speak for three minutes on the radio.

The telegram from Governor Pollard also asked Governor Russell for the loan of state motorcycle policemen to aid Virginia's patrol in handling the celebration traffic.

Since Georgia has no state motorcycle patrol, Governor Russell said he would turn the request over to Mayor James L. Key of Atlanta to advise Governor Pollard whether Atlanta motorcycle officers might aid Virginia's traffic problem.

Should Atlanta officers make the trip, the celebration committee would bear the expense from October 15 through October 19.

LEAGUE WILL HEAR CITY CANDIDATES

Candidates in the city democratic primary slated for October 21 and the general public Friday were invited to attend the luncheon meeting of the men's council, Atlanta League of Women Voters, at 2:30 o'clock Monday. Andrew M. Fairlie is president.

Answers of candidates to a questionnaire sent out by the league will be read prior to the speaking and candidates will be given an opportunity to address those attending.

Among those who have announced they will attend are:

Executive Committee Candidates—Dr. Samuel Green, W. J. Laney, Ernest J. Brewer, A. W. Walker, Mrs. J. D. Billups, Julian Bohm, J. A. Harper, S. P. Winburn, G. C. O'Dell.

Board of Education—W. C. Slate, Dr. E. Fred Morris.

Council—F. A. Mitchell, E. A. Gilham, W. C. Jenkins, Parks Rusk, L. H. Pinkus, J. C. Murphy, George W. Powell.

HEARING POSTPONED IN WENDEL WILL SUIT

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Hearing on a motion to continue the temporary injunction of Rosa Dew Stansbury, Vicksburg, Miss., against the executors and administrators of the estate of the late Ella Wendel, which was to have been held today was postponed until October 25.

Miss Stansbury, a relative of Miss Wendel in the fifth degree asks that the defendants be restrained from probating Miss Wendel's will, which bequeathed most of the huge Wendel fortune to charity, and that the waiver she signed August 21 be set aside.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS DECREASES IN WEEK

NEW POSTMASTER NAMED FOR HAPEVILLE

John H. Cash Is Appointed To Succeed S. K. Hogue in Post.

John H. Cash, of 3396 Stewart avenue, Hapeville, attorney, has been appointed postmaster at Hapeville to succeed S. K. Hogue, who has held the office for nine years. It was announced Friday by the postoffice department at Washington. Mr. Cash Friday night said that he does not know when he will take over the office, but is awaiting advice from the capital.

Mr. Cash has spent a large number of years in the government service, up to five years ago when he began practicing law here. He is a native of Demorest, Ga., and attended Piedmont College in that city. His government service began in 1904 when he was in the recruiting service of the army. From 1907 to 1914 he was chief clerk of a hospital at Panama during construction of the canal. During the World War he was in the accounting branch of the quartermaster's corps at Candler warehouse. He is a Spanish-American War veteran.

Bright, Clear Today, Says Forecaster

Rainfall deficiency for month, 18 ins. Rainfall deficiency for year, 19.37 ins. Temperature Friday, 78 degrees. Temperature one year ago, 70 degrees.

The cloudiness of Friday meant nothing to the temperature then, and it will have no effect on today's weather, according to C. F. von Herrmann, meteorologist. Today's card calls for fair weather with about the same temperatures, with the slight possibility of the mercury climbing to 80 degrees. Friday's temperature started off with a reading of 61 degrees and reached 78 for its maximum, he said. Today will be much clearer as the haze seen here Friday will disappear under gentle winds from the southeast, it was forecast.

ONE KILLED, 3 HURT IN VALENCIA RIOTING

VALENCIA, Spain, Oct. 2.—(AP)—One man was killed and three were wounded at Alcala de Carlot today in a riot between rival political parties in connection with the elections which are to take place on Sunday. Civil guards sent from Valencia restored order and arrested several of the leaders.

LIBERAL POLICY SEEN ON U. S. FARM LOANS

Hyde Assures Senator George
Borrowers Will Be Allowed Renewals.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Secretary of Agriculture Hyde today informed Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, that administrators of the federal seed loan fund have been instructed to adopt a liberal policy with respect to farmers holding loans maturing this fall. The loans may be renewed, he said, subject to suitable evidence on the part of farmers that repayment at this time would work undue hardship because of low price levels of commodities.

Each farmer desiring an extension will be called upon to make a report of his current crop conditions and each application for an extension will be considered on its own merits, the department official said.

Senator George had urged Secretary Hyde to adopt a less stringent course in calling for payment of the loans, pointing out that falling prices on agricultural products make it difficult for the farmers to repay this year.

ARKANSAS OFFICER KILLS COAL MINER

ALLEN, Ark., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Tom Randolph, 26, a coal miner, was shot to death last night by Deputy Sheriff F. P. Curtis as the officer attempted to arrest him on a charge of disturbing religious worship.

Randolph was reported to have thrown a rock through the window of his father-in-law's home adjoining a church and swore loudly. His estranged wife was living with her father.

G. BEN CARLTON GETS TWO-YEAR GANG TERM

G. Ben Carlton, former secretary of the Atlanta fire department, Friday afternoon reported at the Bellwood chain-gang camp and after examination was ordered transferred to the River camp to begin service on a sentence of from two to three years imposed on him Friday morning when he entered a plea of guilty before Judge E. D. Thomas in Fulton superior court on a charge of embezzling more than $6,000 from the Firemen's Benevolent Association last May 5.

The exact amount named in the indictment was $6,882.44, but Solicitor John A. Boykin stated in court that there was an error in the amount, and that the actual amount on which Carlton was entering his plea was less. The 63-year-old former secretary was arrested on a bench warrant after being indicted on May 19, and placed under a heavy bond. A few days later he applied for his pension and when city officials refused to sanction it he brought a mandamus which was refused by Judge John D. Humphries.

Attorneys R. C. Broyles and Welborn Coder, son of the former fire chief, William B. Coder, acting in behalf of Carlton, spoke briefly in court Friday morning pointing out that Carlton has been punished enough by losing his pension and referred to the fact that the matter is pending before the supreme court on the mandamus which was refused. Deputy Sheriff Gordon Hardy took Carlton in charge immediately after the plea of guilty and escorted him to Bellwood camp for registration. He was later ordered transferred to the River camp, where Harry York, former member of council, is serving time for accepting bribes while a public official.

LAST CHANCE TODAY FOR CONCERT TICKETS

Today offers the last opportunity for music lovers to secure season tickets for the All-Star concert series at the auditorium this fall and winter, as the sale now being conducted at the store of Davidson-Paxon Company will close at the end of business hours this afternoon.

"While the demand for season tickets has indicated exceptional interest in the coming of these famous artists, we feel that many prospective patrons have overlooked taking advantage of the economy made possible by subscribing for the series," said Marvin McDonald, manager. "The seats for the six concerts are offered today at $4 to $9."

The concert schedule includes the Don Cosacovs, Russian chorus; Laurence Tibbett, Gail-Curel, La Argentina, the Spanish dancer, Vladimir Horowitz, pianist, and Yehudi Menuhin, the boy violinist.

ATLANTA, GA., OCTOBER 3, 1931.

THE SOUTHEASTERN FAIR.

With elaborate farm, pigeon, poultry and kindred exhibits, the Southeastern Fair opens its gates this morning with the most ambitious program of events of its history.

Especially in its county exhibits of farm products will this year's fair set a new mark. Not only will there be a greater number of exhibits but they will be larger and more complete than ever before.

Pigeon enthusiasts from all over the south are expected to attend the mammoth pigeon show at which more than 2,500 birds will be on exhibit. Among the officials of this show will be Wendell M. Levi, president of the National Pigeon Association.

Running the big pigeon show a close second in size will be the poultry and rabbit shows, which will also have entries from many other states.

Each day of the fair will be devoted to special features and will be marked by elaborate displays of various kinds. Today's opening parade is expected to be larger than that which has inaugurated any of the fairs of past years and will therefore be in keeping with the enlarged scope of the fair in all of its features.

Unusual effort has been exercised in securing the best amusement features in the country for this year's Southeastern Fair and the free exhibitions and concessions are more numerous and elaborate than ever before.

All in all, this year's fair is of a nature which should command the full and generous support not only of the people of Atlanta but of the southeastern states.

STARTLING FIGURES.

Sane and sober Americans, secure in their thought of the United States as a law-abiding, peace-loving country, will have their tranquility rudely disturbed when faced with accumulated crime statistics presented in an article by Arthur B. Reeve, one of our best known authors, in the current issue of Repeal, a magazine devoted to discussion of the prohibition situation.

Never in the history of civilization, according to Mr. Reeve, "has crime been so widely organized and with practically unlimited financial resources."

The arrests for all purposes in the United States last year total one for every 10 persons living in the country. If the ratio of increase attained during the past decade continues during the one ahead, one out of every three people would be arrested during 1940.

These staggering figures include major and minor infractions of the law, but according to Mr. Reeve it remains that "one out of every hundred people you meet in the theaters, the trains, every place that you encounter people during the day and night, has been convicted of some felony and has actually done time; is an ex-convict."

The jails of the country open their doors each year for an army of more than 500,000. On any given day there is a population of 125,000 in these prisons. Two hundred thousand more are to be found in reformatories and similar correctional institutions.

Add to these totals the men and women who are in workhouses and the number of those confined at the public expense will pass the half million mark.

The advent of the 16th amendment may or may not have been responsible for the almost incredibly rapid increase in crime which has been experienced by the United States during the past decade. In Mr. Reeve's opinion it has because "it loosed a flood of money beside which the gold rush of '49 was a picayune piker. That flood of gold has swept aside man's puny laws."

PICTURESQUE FIGURE PASSES.

The death of Sir Thomas Lipton at his home in London removes from sport one of its most picturesque figures—a man who accepted failure in such good spirit as to have become known as "the world's best loser."

While best known because of his gallant efforts to capture the international yacht trophy, he was possessed of business ability amounting almost to genius, and was a much-sought-after and welcome guest in the social circles of Europe and America.

Older citizens of Atlanta will remember the tall and charming Englishman who a quarter of a century ago spent several days as the guest of the late Willis E. Ragan. Few more beautiful tributes to the womanhood of the south have been pronounced than those spoken by Sir Thomas upon his departure.

Born a commoner of moderate means he accumulated by middle age one of England's largest fortunes. Retiring from most of his business cares he devoted himself to his home and gave free reign to his love for yachting. The various Shamrocks were the result and while his boats were never successful in taking back the beautiful emblem he sought, his lovely character and personal charm captivated the most exclusive social circles of the United States.

FORTUNATE FARMERS.

The enviable position now occupied by farmers who have followed the doctrine of live-at-home farming this year is testified to in an advertisement published by the National City Bank of Rome, a copy of which is sent to The Constitution by W. S. Cothran, one of its vice presidents.

Having a large number of farmers as patrons this bank is in a position to know what it is talking about when it says that "those farmers who have operated on a live-at-home program are in better position than the proprietors of many business enterprises in our cities."

Comparing the present position of those who followed programs of diversification and those who willfully stuck to the one-crop idea, the bank's advertisement says:

"It is a matter of great gratification to find so many farmers who have provided ample food and feedstuffs for their families. Those who have not made such provision, relying on the proceeds of a cotton crop to buy their supplies, find themselves in an unfortunate position. Happily such one-crop farmers seem to be in the minority."

The farmers of no county in Georgia have weathered the storm of low-priced cotton better than those of Floyd county, a condition for which the heads of Rome's outstanding financial institution are largely responsible. Both the First National Bank, of which John M. Graham, past president of the Georgia Bankers' Association, is head, and the National City Bank were among the first in the state to adopt the policy of conditioning farm loans on diversified planting programs.

A farmer coming to these banks for money to finance his year's operations was told that he must agree to raise enough food and feedstuffs for his family and his stock or go elsewhere for his money.

The result of this wise policy is that the farm patrons of Rome's banks have more savings accounts than those of any other county in the state. Even those who have not been able to put by any money for a rainy day are not now in desperate condition, because they are at least assured of food and shelter for their families.

In that respect, as the advertisement of the National City Bank points out, they are immeasurably better off than the thousands of unemployed who are to be found in the cities.

Now, if Charlie Curtis turns to that Kansas senescence the democratic whoopee horoscope will be perfect.

The "sage of Northampton" was never sager in his life than when he renounced a 1932 bid for the presidency.

Brookhart says the insurgents are hunting for some one more progressive than President Hoover. That sort of guy should not be hard to find.

Did you read Coolidge's recollection? "Thrice upon the Luperical"—let's see, how does that quotation run?

Mississippi stands with Texas for cotton acreage reduction, but Louisiana and South Carolina believe in "the whole hog or none" policy—so there you are "as you were."

Signs of the millennium multiply. Laval and Briand got back home from Germany loaded with presents.

The Missourians think the democrats could take their man and yet not lean on a broken Reed.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

In the Alps.

It is said of Pieter Breughel, the immortal Flemish painter, that when he caught his first glimpse of the Alps, he could find no words to express his astonishment and impressions and that he simply turned a somersault of delight. One need not quite follow the irrepressible Pieter in his outward manifestations of joy. Somersaulting, moreover, is not as easy as it looks when one sits in a warm Swiss railway carriage. Still, his feelings may be appreciated.

The Alps strike me dumb. There is something frightening in that colossal mass of rock which seems to confront the Absolute. Involuntarily you stretch back to the dawn of creation. What a terrific chaos of smoke and fire and boiling lava our world must have been to produce these stupendous masses of twisted and frozen shapes! Decidedly it was no time to take out your kodak and snap the most elevated peaks as they slowly filed by the carriage window as they do now.

The earth must have been literally on fire. Moreover, come to think of it, Mr. Eastman was a long way off.

Once when I was a little boy my mother gave me money to go to a nearby lake when General William Booth, of the Salvation Army, was giving a meeting. I saw in the "gods." It was the first time I heard English spoken in my life. I thought it an ungodly barbaric tongue. I was there to pass before I should learn to speak it myself. But that is neither here nor there. General Booth was speaking of the end of the earth. He said that the world would be fire. He stretched the word out long, this way: "F-i-r-e." It made a distinctly disagreeable impression on me. I remember that I was thinking I could frighten them with it. They only laughed at me.

That dreadful word of the general's popped back into my mind as I contemplated the Alps. "Fire! Fire! Fire! Fire!" Oh awful, awful day of wrath, when the universe shall go up in smoke," said the early Christians. I was glad when we flew into a tunnel. At least there, I felt, I would be safe for a while. On the other end of the tunnel we ran into lovely green meadows and my fearful vision vanished. Such a man, intimidated by the creature of his own fancy.

At Home.

No sooner do I strike Swiss soil, or I feel at home. That is to say I feel the same as if I were in Flanders or in England, in Germany or in some parts of America. I am among kindred people. Those neat homes of spotless cleanliness, those comfortable restaurants, indoors, not having any of the outside of the world, are so safe for a while. On the other end of the tunnel we ran into lovely green meadows and my fearful vision vanished. Such a man, intimidated by the creature of his own fancy.

When a plumed and feathered policeman in Sofia or Tangier tells me to move on, I do so. I know the fellow's mind runs in different grooves than mine. I take no chances. But when an Atlanta cop or a Berlin policeman or an English lobby for this year gives me a hard time, I have the slightest fear of his threats. Some demagogues, however, contrive to egg me on to show him that I know the law as well as he does. From way down deep in the innermost recesses of my mind, we are not to be trampled upon, that we have our rights, too. I have won at the cost of a lot of trouble.

This consciousness asserts itself. It gives you just the right measure of impudence. Of course, I give in in the end. For I believe that the rights are derived from the consent of the people. And that I am one of the people.

A Distinguished Family.

In Bern I lingered the better part of a morning in the spacious and airy halls of the federal archives. Assisted by a courteous librarian, I searched for and found certain records bearing history. The name of the Huber family, from which our president descends. I found that the Hubers or Hoovers were fighting in the Swiss wars of independence in 1492, the year wherein Columbus discovered America.

The branch from which the president comes went over to the Reformation under Zwingli and was in the forefront of the forces defending the new order of things. The list of Hubers or Hoovers who attained distinction in their home canton is impressive. Some went to Germany, where they were equally prominent.

The curious part of the history of the Swiss branch of the family was for some years president of the international court of justice at The Hague, perhaps the highest distinction for a European to reach, and that the head of the American branch acceded to the highest position within the gift of the American people.

High Praise Is Given To Capt. Enoch Brown, Advertising Director

(From Nashville Tennessean.)
If one were required to select from among the promising young newspapermen of the south the one with the soundest ideas and most promising future, the choice would probably fall upon Captain Enoch Brown, Jr., former advertising manager of The Tennessean, who now goes to the Atlanta Constitution as advertising director.

This young Tennessean, who was born in Williamson county and graduated from Vanderbilt University, where he captained the football team, possesses a peculiar degree those elements which go for success. In addition to high integrity, he is endowed with splendid executive ability and the soundest kind of judgment. To him the newspaper business is an absorbing study and with splendid executive ability and the soundest kind of judgment, the editorial department, mechanical operation and business administration have been mastered by him to a remarkable extent.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 2.—Hope Williams is the present sensation of the colony. New York has been Williams conscious for some time now—but Hollywood must find its famous for itself.

The movie colony agrees that this something different girl from Manhattan "has something." And that group of cinemaites who go in for brains, chic and savor-faire are rushing her.

Joan Crawford and Doug Fairbanks have fallen for the Williams wit, which is "of a difference." It is said to be even more clever than the brilliant wit of the former, who has a barb concealed beneath its cleverness.

Jimmy Durante has "gone social" and is appearing with a flock of lovely ladies at luncheon. Quite unruffled. Those in the inner circle of cinema chic call Hope Williams "Hokey"—it's just a sign that you're on the inner track. And Gilbert Roland says he would rather face a lion than the four stars, although his friends in Hollywood greet his performance of Armand in "Camille" with Jane Cowl, with hearty applause. By the way, Roland was a foreman in Mexico before coming to Los Angeles, where a far less glorious occupation awaited him. But we are not so glamorous here as in those Latin countries.

BONERS

There is nothing insidious about them. When felon happens you know just when and where. Then when it gets started it reaches full maturity within 48 hours—but it depends on how dumb you are, whether you go on suffering all that time and longer, or obtain immediate relief and safety.

The characteristic symptoms of felon are throbbing pain, swelling and exquisite tenderness in the distal phalanx of the "point" farthest away, yet how near it seems when you have a felon.

One thing about a felon, it gives you an excellent means of gauging your doctor's competence or ability. If he hears your complaint and takes good, logical, and dignified without touching and proceeds to get ready to anesthetize you and incise the thing and doctor it (not "lance" it), he is a good doctor. If he does not, or pressures the already excruciating tender digit trying to elicit fluctuation (evidence of pus) and then states that the felon is a polyp, or some such nice old grand-motherly sympathy, you would do well to ease yourself out of his shop as soon as you can make a tidy escape, and look up another doctor who knows something about good conservative surgery. There is only one safe and effective treatment for felon, and that is immediate and thorough surgical incision, under anesthesia, of course. Any other treatment is just nursing and nursing, and nursing, even if it costs the victim only a few days of unnecessary suffering.

The relief of the pain of a felon—this is inflammation and suppuration under the tight peritosteum or covering of the bone—is only one good reason for the immediate free incision down to the bone; the other important reason is to prevent possible serious septicemia (blood poisoning) or extensive damage to the victim's hand, which may occur if the incision and drainage is postponed 24 hours.

The "lancing" practice of "lancing" such infection without the use of an anesthetic was atrocious, not only for the unjustifiable pain of the timid victim, but for the danger of the frequent failure of such half-way treatment to bring cure or even relief. Even if you're a dumb hero and don't mind having such torture inflicted on you, the lancing practice is a sure way to let the infection and pus better off tomorrow, and your little hero act has gone for naught. A few whiffs of ether, or nitrous oxide (laughing gas), or oxygen, or other anesthetic, and the doctor can do a proper job and assure you a good night's rest and prompt and painless healing.

Immediate and thorough opening of a felon is precisely analogous to immediate extraction of a so-called "ulcerated" tooth—that is, a tooth with an acute abscess at its root. I suppose some folks sympathize with the victim who walks the floor in misery with a swollen jaw, waiting for the swelling to subside so he can get the tooth extracted. Such a picture makes one laugh. Even a few hours' delay in extracting the tooth (or possibly drilling through it) to reach the abscess, may permit grave injury to the jawbone, or even a threat against life itself from septicemia. How comical, then, is the notion of lancing a felon without an anesthetic, and waiting for relief and safety is waiting for him at the dentist's office.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

IT IS A CRIME TO NURSE A FELON.

There is nothing insidious about them. When felon happens you know just when and where. Then when it gets started it reaches full maturity within 48 hours—but it depends on how dumb you are, whether you go on suffering all that time and longer, or obtain immediate relief and safety.

SCHOOL PAY HIKES HALTED BY MAYOR

Allocation of $1,900,000 Is Announced by Governor Russell.

Payment of 27.71 per cent of all 1929, 1930 and 1931 unpaid appropriations to the common schools and state institutions will be made from the proceeds of the recent sale of $2,700,000 of Western and Atlantic railroad rental warrants, Governor Richard L. Russell Jr. announced Friday after receiving approval from State Auditor W. M. Wisniam a schedule of distribution.

Most of the $1,902,112.20 will go to the common schools, their claims against the treasury amounting to a total of $3,740,148.39. Total net unpaid appropriations, less non-participating and lapsed funds, amounted to $8,802,428.65. The unpaid appropriations after the rental discount money has been distributed, will amount to $4,900,316.45.

This amount will be further reduced as the state highway board pays into the general treasury $540,000 each on April 1, 1932, October 1, 1932, and April 1, 1933. By the latter date, the original unpaid appropriations, which amount to $7,490,000 as of December 1, 1931, will have been reduced to $3,340,316.45, or less than half.

Checks for the net treasury yield, Governor Russell said, will be sent out as quickly as possible.

The distribution will be as follows: Common schools, $1,038,085.71; pension, $121,230.22; prison, $5,754.45; training school for boys, $3,562.59; training school for girls, $3,514.04; tuberculosis sanatorium, $10,328.67; training school for music, $1,443.33; Gracewood, $3,389.05; Milledgeville State hospital, $18,072.77; academy for the blind, $1,809,327.11; school for the deaf, $1,809,327.11; Consolidated Soldiers' Home, Atlanta, $2,231.28; coastal plains experiment station, $9,357.29; Georgia experiment station, $8,774.68.

State Normal College, Athens, $49,028.68; School of Technology, Atlanta, $58,241.96; College of Agriculture, Athens, $45,861.14; College of Veterinary Medicine, $40,370.98; Teachers' College, Athens, $25,708.23; Women's College, Valdosta, $1,947.29; Teachers' College, $1,947.29; College for Men, Tifton, $12,057.23; Industrial and Normal College, Savannah, $11,553.67; Agriculture and Normal College, Americus, $7,916.68.

State Normal College, Douglas, $8,273.75; North Georgia College, Dalton, $8,273.75; Agriculture and Normal College, Albany, $8,273.75; Georgia College, Milledgeville, $8,273.75; Industrial College, Barnesville, $8,273.75; Ninth District A. M. school, Clarksville, $8,273.75; Georgia College, Milledgeville, $8,273.75; Middle Georgia College, Cochran, $8,273.75; Normal and Industrial College, Bowdon, $8,273.75; Seventh District A. M. school, Bowdon, $8,273.75.

Eighth District A. M. school, Madison, $8,273.75; School of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts, Forsyth, $8,273.75; Fourth District A. M. school, Dalton, $8,273.75; Georgia Military College, Milledgeville, $8,273.75.

Checks totaling $1,936,000 were placed in the mails early Friday night for the school department and will be delivered today to Georgia schools as full payment of the 1928-1929 Barrett-Rogers fund and part payment of the 1928 general school fund. M. L. Duggan, state superintendent of schools, announced.

Mr. Duggan said that forces of his department worked day and night to get the checks into the mails by Friday night, and that cooperation by the state treasurer's office enabled the school department to receive the money so promptly.

The money came from sale of the Western & Atlantic Railroad rentals under authority of an act of the 1931 legislature.

SCHOOL PAY HIKES HALTED BY MAYOR

tion has yet been called, and failure of W. W. Gaines, president, to do so, would be a move to defer any action of the board pending consideration of the $250,000 additional appropriation the finance committee of council recommended Thursday for schools.

Just what position the board may take following council's session is a matter of conjecture. It is, however, in the event that the council approves the additional funds another fight to preserve the salary hikes will be made.

Another $14,000 Added.

Despite the fact that allocations in the October finance sheet Thursday carried an over-appropriation of $988,000, the committee Friday added another $14,000—$10,000 for street repairs and $4,000 for relief purposes. G. Graham West, city comptroller, Thursday said that the $14,000 was added on an illegal anticipation, "since there is no assurance that the fund will be forthcoming."

City employees in all but the school department received their salary checks Thursday afternoon and Friday morning. School attaches must await outcome of the impasse between the mayor and the board, with the hope that it will be ironed out before the middle of next week.

E. R. Sweet, vice president of the board of education, issued another statement setting out the board's view of the situation. He said the board feels that if school employees are to give a month's pay, they should not be called upon to make the additional sacrifice in salary increments.

During its morning deliberations, the finance committee heard a letter from the school department, which was referred to the committee. Alderman E. J. Gilliam proposed to institute a 10 per cent cut in all salaries was advanced and will

Money, Thrills, Inspiration Rewards in Proverb Contest

Clergymen Everywhere
Indorse $2,300 Game.
Back Pictures and Proverb List Free.

BY PROVERB CONTEST EDITOR.

On Sunday another week of proverb contest thrills begins for Constitution readers.

Pictures are said to speak volumes. In this instance, they are shouting old sayings that lead directly to $2,300 in cash prizes. What old saying comes to your mind as you gaze at picture No. 21? Be sure to notice the unhappy position of the gentleman between two fires.

Young and old, subscribers and non-subscribers, are invited to take part in this unusual contest, which has been indorsed by religious leaders of every denomination in Georgia. There are no involved rules and followers of the contest are not asked to get subscriptions or to bother about special conditions. Twenty-three hundred dollars in cash will reward the efforts of determined readers who find the old sayings represented by the series of pictures.

A special help is available to contestants in the form of a free list of 2,000 famous old sayings, many of them handed down from the days of Solomon. This list, in addition to aiding in the search for correct answers for the pictures, is a most interesting document. It contains the philosophies of Plato, Francis Bacon, Lincoln and other great world figures. The list may be had without cost or obligation of any kind by calling at the office of The Constitution. Or it will be mailed to those who write to the proverb editor and enclose a two-cent stamp with their requests. The list is also available at these drugstores:

Questions and Answers.
Question—"Can I mix the proverb pictures taken from the paper with those printed on the paper, when I turn in my set?" Mrs. W. H. D., Lula, Georgia.

Answer—"I notice in the rules of the proverb contest that the book 'Proverbs of All Ages' is the only publication that has all of the correct answers. Can you tell me what book store or library I can obtain a copy of this book, and will you also tell me how much it will cost?" Mrs. K. T. C., Atlanta, Ga.

Answer—"The answers for all of the pictures that have been published thus far can be found on either the free list of 2,000 proverbs, or among the proverbs that were given daily beneath the early pictures of the contest. However, the free list of 2,000 proverbs contains many but not all of the correct solutions for the 80 pictures, because of limited space. Bird Alter, the artist who drew the pictures, selected all the old sayings to be illustrated from the book 'Proverbs of All Ages.' At the suggestion of several contestants, The Constitution recently arranged with the publisher of 'Proverbs of All Ages,' to make the book available at 50 cents a copy. 'Proverbs of All Ages,' which is guaranteed to include a correct answer for every picture, may be had by calling at the office of The Constitution—or by mail. Mail orders for this interesting book, which is the most widely sold of its kind in the world, must be accompanied by 4 cents extra charge. The Constitution takes this occasion to make it clear that contestants are not obligated to buy a copy of 'Proverbs of All Ages.' It has been made available simply to accommodate the contestants and that this arrangement be made.

Question—"We do not get the Sunday Constitution. Can I get the Sunday proverb picture by sending 5 cents to the office of The Constitution?" Mrs. J. E. G., Fitzgerald, Ga.

Answer—"Yes, any of the back pictures may be had at any time during the duration of the contest for 5 cents apiece.

Question—"I wish to know if there is just one correct answer for each proverb picture in the contest. Or do you want us to get many answers that will fit each picture?" Mrs. E. W., Chipley, Ga.

Answer—"There is only one correct proverb answer for each picture. However, several pictures have proverb answers that have logical versions. These logical versions, however, will also be counted as correct.

Question—"I am writing to know if we can score the contest. What I mean is, if I send in three sets of answers, with 80 pictures in each set, will the judges take the correct answers from each set and put them together, thereby scoring a perfect set? Or will they take the set with the most correct answers, discarding the others?" Mrs. J. L. S., Louisville, Ga.

Answer—"Should a contestant turn in several sets of pictures and answers, all of the correct answers on the various sets will not be combined by the judges, when deciding the winners. Each set submitted will be judged individually and, of course, a contestant's best set will be awarded a prize, provided it has a prize-winning number of correct answers.

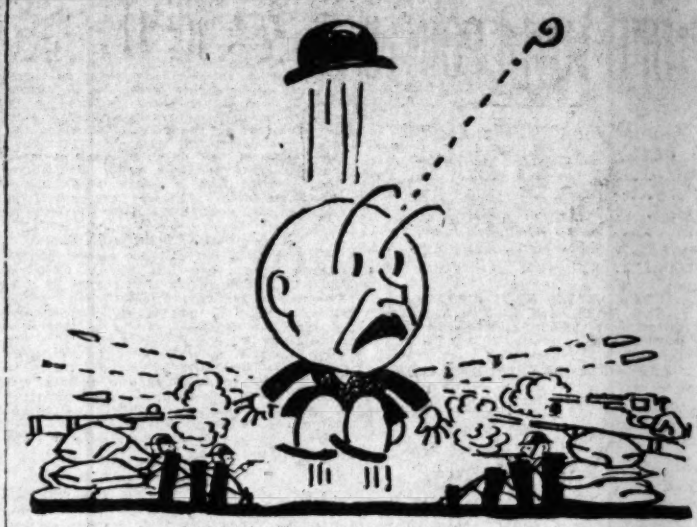

Missing Lieutenant Is Discharged by Army

If you see Second Lieutenant Wilbur Kenneth Enos, lat. of the infantry reserve, United States army, you might inform him that he has been discharged by the war department, at direction of the president. He is lost.

Lieutenant Enos was assigned to the 311th tank regiment, a Georgia reserve unit, and when a recent checkup failed to locate the officer, he was ordered discharged.

If you are curious to know how an officer can be given a discharge when he cannot be found—well, there's a bulletin board to post it on, perhaps. Lieutenant Colonel R. K. Greene, of Atlanta, announced Lieutenant Enos' discharge.

$2,300 For Old Sayings

City State

The correct answer for picture No. 21 may be recalled from memory and it can be found on the free and valuable list of 2,000 proverbs offered without obligation to readers of The Constitution. Don't let this picture "stump" you. If you can't remember the old saying that fits it, call at the office of The Constitution and obtain one of the lists. Or a copy of the list may be had by writing to the Proverb Editor, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., and enclosing a two-cent stamp for return postage.

Instructions.
The total prize money to be awarded Proverb Contest entrants is $2,300. The first prize is $1,000; the second, $500; the third, $250; the fourth, $100, and the fifth, $50. The supplemental prizes consist of prizes of $25 each and fifteen prizes of $10 each. There is no charge to take part in the contest, and it is not necessary for contestants to register.

HALLAHAN PITCHES CARDS TO VICTORY

since he had picked up the pitch from the dirt. For the next few moments all was chaos, but Captain Collins saved the situation momentarily for the champions and the umpires sent the Cardinals back to their positions. Max Bishop came to bat with opportunity beckoning him. But on his pop foul toward the field boxes off the right side, the Cardinals charged, made a spectacular catch for the final out, and half tumbled over the fence into the arms of spectators.

Even the scores were groggy under the effect of these lightning-like events. An error that at first was charged against Hallahan for his low pitch, was recalled, and the misplay charged against Wilson.

Cardinals "Revived."
A wildly yelling home-town crowd of 35,947 cash customers, nearly 4,000 shy of a capacity turnout, remained to the final thrilling moment of the game. The victory served as a pulmotor to the flagging spirits of the Cardinals, and put them back in the thick of the fight.

It was Hallahan's shutout pitching in the third game last year that started the Red Birds on their comeback flight. The sturdy southpaw work today was such as to make the National league champions confident of waging a battle to the finish with the ruling powers of baseball.

Even the scores were groggy under the effect of these lightning-like events. An error that at first was charged against Hallahan for his low pitch, was recalled, and the misplay charged against Wilson.

Lead Increased.
Earnshaw held the rest of the Cardinals in check until the seventh inning, which Martin opened with a line single to left field. Still very much at large, Martin stole second easily, Cochrane's throw being so far away from the mark that Williams was able to make a tag as he tagging the runner. Wilson's infield out put Martin on third and Pepper raced home on Gilbert's sacrifice bunt to Earnshaw. Big George was off balance when he fielded the ball tossed to him by Cochrane, and Martin slid safely under the catcher.

Martin was the only Cardinal to get so far as third base. Watkins doubled with one out in the first, and Frisch did the same thing in the sixth, but the bats of Bottomley and Hafever were ineffective in these opportunities. The two leading sluggers of the Cardinals went hitless. Their youthful teammate, playing in his first World Series, stole the scoring spotlight and shared the day's honors with Hallahan.

The Cardinals, except for Wilson's lapse in the ninth, played just as spectacularly behind Hallahan today as the A's did back of Lefty Grove yesterday. Bottomley's final catch was a gem, but the fielding feature of the game was a great catch by George Watkins on a drive by Cochrane, near the right-field barrier, in the sixth inning. Haas was on base, due to a single, and Cochrane's blow looked like a certain double until Watkins got his hands on it.

Foxs Is Troublesome.
Alone of the A's big guns, Jimmy Fox was the only troublesome mud for Hallahan. The champions didn't get a hit off Hallahan until the fifth inning. But this frame witnessed the first of three scoring threats, each led by Fox, and which the Cardinal southpaw was lucky to survive.

Fox walked, Bing Miller singled sharply to right, and Dykes sacrificed beautifully to set the first Athletic attack in motion in the fifth. Playing for a double killing, Hallahan purposely passed Williams' full swing, who engineered a double play via Gilbert and Bottomley.

Fox batted a single to center, starting the seventh. Miller forced him, Dykes fouled out, but Williams again was passed. Miller galloped to

GOVERNOR OF S. C. IN ATLANTA TODAY

Blackwood To Confer With Russell and Attend Football Game.

Governor Ibra C. Blackwood, of South Carolina, whose state, with Louisiana, passed cotton ban laws for 1932, will arrive in Atlanta at 10 o'clock this morning and will confer with Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. at the capitol.

The object of the conference, said Leeman Anderson, private secretary to Governor Russell, has not been announced.

One year ago, when Governor Blackwood had not taken office, he came to Atlanta to attend the South Carolina-Tech football game. Governor Russell, then governor-elect also, entertained him. It was indicated at the capitol that the two governors again would watch the game between institutions representing their states.

From Greenville, Governor Blackwood announced he would confer with Governor Russell about the cotton situation.

"I am hopeful," the South Carolina executive said, "that some plan can be devised which will materially boost the cotton industry."

Failure of Texas to pass cotton ban legislation caused interest in a special session of the Georgia legislature to dwindle.

The South Carolina ban law, like that of Louisiana, is not operative unless similar legislation is passed to govern three-fourths of the cotton-growing area. Back in 1914 South Carolina passed, in a special October session, a reduction law but repealed it at the regular session the following February.

MEN WHO GAVE LIQUOR TO GIRLS DRAW TERMS

H. C. Dover and Pledger Adkins, charged with giving whisky to two 14-year-old schoolgirls, entered pleas of guilty before Judge E. D. Thomas in Fulton superior court Friday morning, and were given sentences of 12 months each under an old Georgia statute.

They probably will serve but three months of the sentence, it was pointed out by court officials, as Judge Thomas gave them each two 12-month sentences to be served concurrently, and added that when three months had been served the remaining nine could be suspended in the discretion of the court. Both men were indicted under two misdemeanor bills, one charging the possession of whisky and the second, a pre-validated statute, charging "furnishing" spirituous liquors to minors without written consent of parents. The children were not in court, but attending school, it was stated.

POSTOFFICE WORK WILL START SOON

syth and Walton streets will continue to house the main station of the post office department here, the new building taking over the activities at station B, Garnett and Forsyth streets, which is leased by the government from private owners.

The tunnel attached to the new building will run from the postoffice under Spring street to Mitchell, where it will turn west and join the railway mail platform under the Terminal Station, thus affording an artery for rapid transportation of the mail between the postoffice and the trains.

Land for the site of the postoffice building was obtained by the government through condemnation proceedings. The majority of the tract facing Spring and Forsyth and Hunter streets was condemned under friendly proceedings, but one small area at Spring and Hunter streets was contested, a jury in federal court passing on the purchase price. The site has been clear for several months, the property owners having torn down the buildings under their agreement with the government.

The new construction work is expected to aid in relieving unemployment. Mayor James L. Key and other leaders frequently have urged an early start of the job in order that idle workmen may be given jobs.

third on a wild pitch. The ball hit in front of the plate and Williams did not risk the chance for an extra base. Again Earnshaw took his turn at bat in the pinch, and this time he struck out to close the inning.

The ninth-inning climax was a fitting finish for the kind of game Hallahan was pitching. He was in and out of trouble, but seldom gave the A's anything like a good ball to whack at.

The A's still rule the favorites to make it three world championships in a row, but it looks like anything but a rout now.

The world champions can shoot their ace southpaw, Grove, back into the firing line Monday for the third game. The Cardinals have the choice of sending their veteran spitballer, Burleigh Grimes, out for this game, instead of giving young Paul Derringer another chance. Win or lose, they may then rely on Hallahan for the fourth battle.

The Athletics left for home immediately after today's game. The Cardinals depart tomorrow noon, reaching Philadelphia Sunday.

Instead of giving young Paul Derringer another chance. Win or lose, they may then rely on Hallahan for the fourth battle.

Pulitzer Prize-Winning Playwright Tires of City, Returns to Dixie Farm

BY MAURICE DUHAMEL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(P)—Paul Green, the university instructor who flashed into Broadway brilliance as a playwright, has turned his back on the white way and returned to North Carolina where his fame is that of a champion cotton picker.

Three days on the Rialto were enough for the author of "The House of Connelly," after he had seen the Theater Guild launch his third play. He spent one of them in the theater and most of the other hours in a small room of an obscure hotel just off the main avenues of metropolitan traffic.

"I've a lot more work to do," he said, "and I'd rather do it on my little farm where it is quiet and peaceful."

A part of that work will be the completion of "Potters Field," his fourth play.

"Mr. Paul," as his southern neighbors call him, chafed at the hemmed-in confines of streets and buildings. The author of "In Abraham's Bosom," Pulitzer prize winner of five years ago and "The Field God," which followed and was not a success, is no theatrical man, as New York understands the term.

He is an instructor of philosophy in the University of North Carolina. His friends say he is a poet with an inherent dramatic sense and a knack of putting life into lowly characters.

The critics agree his latest work has raised him high in the field of American playwrights.

When he wrote "In Abraham's Bosom," Paul Green had seen a stage play. For his characters he drew upon life as he knew it. For the mechanics of its production, his innate logic served him.

"The House of Connelly" took its audience by storm and critics praised Green's talents. They heralded as an outstanding success the simple tale of a worn-out aristocratic southern family, reduced to extreme and making its come-back through marriage with a "poor white" but wise and ultra-modern girl.

Green is about 35, married and the father of a little girl and boy who are curly headed and wide-eyed like himself. He fought on the western front in the World War and last year toured Europe under a Guggenheim educational fellowship.

He dresses carelessly, usually forgets to have his shoes shined when in town and when in his own room sheds coat, vest and necktie as quickly as possible.

It is of no moment to him that Broadway is pouring its gold and grime upon him.

"Money," he said, "is a good thing to have. It has its uses. But I like to work and study. Money gets in the way sometimes."

Paul Green has the hands of a toiler. He finds much pleasure in the fact that first prize he ever won was as the best cotton picker in a North Carolina county competition.

MONETARY MEET URGED BY BORAH

Idaho Senator Asks Hoover To Call World Conference on Money Values

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(P)—Senator Borah, of Idaho, urged President Hoover today to call an international monetary conference to consider adoption of bimetalism by the leading nations.

In a luncheon conference with the president, the Idaho senator discussed a wide range of subjects, including bimetalism, political conditions and disarmament problems with particular reference to the Geneva conference next February.

He painted a dark picture to the president of political conditions in the west, particularly as a result of the farm situation and reiterated his belief in the export debenture plan for agricultural aid.

Prohibition was also talked about and Borah, an outstanding supporter of the eighteenth amendment, said he found his views generally in agreement with the president's.

Following the conference Borah expressed hope for the calling of an international monetary conference but gave no indication that the president had given him encouragement in that direction.

Borah said the leading nations of the world could successfully establish a fixed ratio between gold and silver as a monetary base. "The United States alone could not," he said.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We have consolidated our Insurance Agency with that of

Venable & Fitten

And in the future will be associated with that firm

Mr. J. Turner Fitten is a man of long experience in the insurance business and is regarded as one of Atlanta's successful business men.

Mr. Oscar Venable has been active in the insurance business in Atlanta more than 17 years, having served as President of Dargan, Venable & Whittington, Inc., from which firm he retired in March, 1931.

We feel that with this consolidation we will be equipped to render insurance service equal to the best.

We take this opportunity of thanking our friends for their patronage in the past and soliciting a continuance of same.

Dictated by... ATLANTA BUSINESS MEN

"I own three automobiles, and I spend, every week in the year, a dollar and a half for street car rides. I really like to ride on street cars. I believe a great many people who own automobiles ride street cars."

"For 49 years, barring holidays.... I have, from choice, used your cars 365 days in the year.... I have found it to be the safest, cheapest, most reliable, most dependable as well as the most convenient method of transportation ever devised by man."

"I... ride... your lines and... the lines of other street railway companies, and while the Atlanta spirit may enter into my conclusions somewhat, I do believe that our street car service... is not equaled by any other street railway in the country."

"I ride every day and prefer the street cars to my automobile. Your service is satisfactory in every way to me."

"I use your cars almost twice per day. My auto remains at home. Wish I had the thousands that I have spent on autos. I would feel very much better financially."

"We have two automobiles... however, we avail ourselves of the convenience of street cars, particularly when shopping or engaged on... business downtown. I, personally, use your cars quite often because of both safety, comfort and saving of energy."

"I have two autos, but ride mostly on your fine street cars."

Are you permitting the HABIT of riding your automobile to deny you the convenience, safety and economy that street cars offer you? Give street car riding a trial.

Highlights of Wall Street

BY CHARLES W. STORM,
Editor, The New Service of Wall Street.

(Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution by the American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)
NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The constructive effect of buying by important interests began to be apparent today when the general stock market showed resistance to further pressure.

Liquidation, however, continued in substantial volume and at one time the market wiped out substantial early gains, but the fact that the early afternoon decline did not reach the bottom figures established Thursday was construed as a favorable sign, presaging future stabilization. Average prices for industrials and public utilities closed about a point higher but rails were more than a point lower.

Selling of the rails was accompanied by reports that the transportation companies would not get the requested advance in freight rates. Refusal by the interstate commerce commission to give the common carriers higher rates would have an unfavorable influence on the market for the transportation stocks inasmuch as it would take months before any decisive step could be taken with regard to a reduction in wages.

STRONG OPENING.
Initial prices in today's trading furnished a pleasant surprise in substantial overnight gains. Much of the strength was attributed to the better feeling growing out of the announcement of the proposed merger of the Bank of America with the National City Bank. The higher range of quotations, however, induced offerings of stocks which erased part of the initial gains.

The market was showing signs of stability when a rumor gained currency that the railroad companies would higher freight rates would be denied. This caused selling of the railroad shares under leadership of New York Central and caused sympathetic offerings of industrials and public utilities.

When the market was at its lowest, in the early afternoon, liquidation was reported to be pouring in from the middle west, especially from Pittsburgh and Detroit. The middle west is reported to have been heavily stocked of General Motors stock the last two days. This selling, however, seemed to be readily absorbed as the issue displayed steadiness.

The firmness of General Motors was accompanied by reports that Washington, which is the home of the DuPonts, who are the controlling interests in the corporation, were substantial buyers of the stock.

COLLINGS' WIDOW REACHES FLORIDA

Two Ritchies To Be Interviewed by Victim of Yacht Mystery Killing.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Oct. 2.—(AP)—(Saturday).—Mrs. Benjamin Collings, Stamford, Conn., widow, arrived here early today to question Dr. Leslie D. Ritchie and his son, William, concerning the recent mysterious plane slaying of her husband on his yacht Penguin in Long Island sound September 9.

Dr. Ritchie, 51-year-old veterinarian and woodward operator, and his son, William, have been detained here for two days in connection with the murder investigation. Both emphatically have denied they knew anything about the case, except what they have read in the newspapers.

Mrs. Collings was accompanied to Florida from New York by her attorney, William A. Kelly; her sister-in-law, Miss Helen Collings, and Fred Mulder, assistant district attorney of Suffolk county.

Together with Mrs. Collings the attorneys came to question the Ritchies as to whether or not they could advance any information regarding the two men who boarded Collings' yacht Penguin on September 9, beat him on the head and tossed his trussed body into Long Island sound. They also sought to question the Ritchies concerning the abduction of Mrs. Collings after the slaying.

Before leaving New York Mrs. Collings studied photographs of the Ritchies and said she could not be sure, but that she doubted if they were the men who committed the crime. Previous to the arrival of the New York party Dr. Ritchie, who took up operation of a woodyard here after retiring from the veterinary profession in Florida and Vermont, was asked what he thought of Mrs. Collings coming here to question him.

"I think that's great," he said, puffing vigorously at a cigar. "I am very glad of it, although I hate to disappoint her. I know she cannot identify my son and me as the murderers." Dr. Ritchie and his son, William, were concerned about the arrival of the New York party. While he discussed his detention in a casual manner, officers interpreted police headquarters for the interview. Flood lights were installed in the courtroom.

The former veterinarian talked freely concerning whereabouts on the night of the tragedy.

"My son and I went sailing late in the afternoon of the ninth," he said. "We didn't have much luck and went back to my home. My son William here, said he needed some money to buy food for his wife and baby, and Ritchie said his son got into a poker game with the money instead of buying provisions for his family.

"I caught him playing cards in the kitchen of my house with one of my other boys and a neighbor," Dr. Ritchie continued, "and I spoke to him very harshly about it. He got up and went."

"That was about 9:30 o'clock and my wife and I went to a picture house and saw a picture."

"I never saw Mr. or Mrs. Collings, never even saw their boat, the Penguin. I don't even know them and never heard of them until I read about the murder in the paper."

FULTON CORPORATION EARNINGS INCREASE
Fulton Industrial Securities Corporation earnings for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931, amounted to $167,226.58, before interest. It was announced Friday. This is an increase of $151,085.55 over last year, the announcement says, and it is the fourth consecutive year that increases have been shown.

Headquarters of the company is located in Atlanta, with eight branch offices being maintained in the south-east. The concern recently announced an offering of $500,000 additional profit sharing bonds bearing 6 per cent coupons with annual participation in earnings up to 3 per cent.

Foreign Service Tests Scheduled for Atlanta
WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—State department officials today announced that a written examination for commissions in the foreign service will be held in Atlanta on January 18, next.

The oral test completing the examination will be held in Washington beginning May 2, 1932.

Applicants desiring to qualify for the foreign service must be specially designated for examination. Applications for designation are to be addressed to the secretary of state and must be filed not later than 40 days before the date set for the written examination. No designations for the examinations to be held on January 18, 19 and 20, 1932, will be made after December 8, 1931.

Republicans Will Question Illinois Recount Legality

Democrats, Meanwhile, See Renewed Hope for House Control in Victory of Kunz in Contest.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Late dispatches from Chicago giving the results of a recount which indicates the election of a democrat over a republican in last year's congressional election, tonight complicated further the already involved situation affecting the organization of the next house.

At the same time, however, the unexpected turn taken by the recount tended to point more than ever to democratic control, though the final outcome still hinges on two things—first, the vacancies to be filled in six congressional districts, and second, the attitude of Representative Paul Kvale, lone farmer-laborite of Minnesota, who may find himself in position to cast the deciding vote.

Representative Kvale, while yet to declare himself formally, is unofficially cataloged as favorable to democratic organization.

On a basis of returns from last November's elections, the change in a seat from republican to democratic, as given by the Chicago recount, would give the two major parties 217 members each, with the lone farmer-laborite completing the list. Actually, however, there are six vacancies—three caused by death and three by special elections to be held between now and the date of reconvening in December. Four of the vacancies in districts which are normally republican; two are democratic strongholds.

The recount in question centers in the eighth Illinois district, where the face of initial returns Peter C. Granata, republican, was declared the winner over former Representative Stanley Kunz, democrat, now the indicated victor.

The situation is complicated by the fact that credentials of election have already been issued to Granata, who, pending the formal opening of congress, has been assigned an office in the house building and placed on the congressional pay roll.

Another factor of no less importance is the contention of republican leaders in Illinois that the present recount is irregular. Under the circumstances, it is hardly to be expected that republican state officials of Illinois will issue a second certificate of election to the democratic contestant superseding the credentials already issued to Granata.

William Tyler Page, clerk of the house, said tonight, for example, that some question as to legality has been raised against the recount and there was serious doubt whether the house would be ready to recognize Kunz without first making an inquiry into the matter.

That does not mean that the tea merchant ever made an attempt to force his way into the house, but by invitation only. But while the situation at any time within the last 30 months might have found every republican in the country cheering, the fact that the action was not taken until 1931.

Once a member, Sir Thomas flew the white ensign, reserved for vessels of the royal navy and for the Royal Yacht Squadron, from his Shamrock V, and from his great steam yacht Erin.

Sportsman Dies

Sir Thomas Lipton, noted British yachtsman and merchant prince, died Friday in London in his eighty-second year, after a brief illness.

sented to him by Americans as a tribute to his sportsmanship and in his election later to the British Royal Yacht Squadron, his membership.

Why Sir Thomas, who probably rendered greater service to British yachting than any other man, had to wait until he was 80 years old before being elected to England's premier yacht club, puzzled countless people. Britain's social history provides the answer.

Lipton was a tradesman, proud of his rise from a 9-year-old errand boy earning 2 shillings sixpence weekly in Glasgow to a membership in a club which had spread his slogan, "Drink Lipton's tea," all over the world.

The ultra-exclusive Royal Yacht Squadron had no desire to enroll a tradesman among its membership. Moreover, in the latter years of Queen Victoria's reign he was a member of what was known as "the Prince of Wales set"—that is a close friend of the man who shortly was to become King Edward VII. This group of men and women did not always meet with the approval of the great bulk of Britain's aristocratic families.

NEW BROAD BRIDGE OPENED BY MAYOR

Downtown Traffic Artery Dedicated With Formal Ceremony.

A new downtown traffic artery was opened Friday morning when Mayor James L. Key officially cut the tape barrier stretched across the reconstructed Broad street viaduct and allowed a stream of pedestrian and vehicular traffic to flow north and south over that thoroughfare after a two months' shutdown.

Combining the latest word in safety construction with a modern beauty that lends itself to the general plaza pattern that has been the dream of Atlantans for more than a decade, the new bridge spans the railroad tracks with a quiet dignity that is devoid of the old-fashioned overhead superstructure that marked the earlier viaducts of Atlanta. Built of steel and concrete, it adds another segment to the general plaza plan that has been proclaimed the only solution to the city's midtown railroad problem.

The old Broad street viaduct which was torn down for the new bridge was built in 1895, and served its purpose for more than three decades. Last year it was discovered that the blackened old viaduct was on the verge of collapse, presenting a peril to the city's business and pleasure.

The ultra-exclusive Royal Yacht Squadron had no desire to enroll a tradesman among its membership. Moreover, in the latter years of Queen Victoria's reign he was a member of what was known as "the Prince of Wales set"—that is a close friend of the man who shortly was to become King Edward VII. Speakers at the dinner included Honorable Potomac Richard N. Fickett Jr. of Annapolis; Brigadier General Charles H. Cox, adjutant general of Georgia; Professor Ralph P. Black of New York; Hon. T. H. Huet, J. D. Crowder, and officers of the legion. Major Cohen presided as toastmaster.

HOST OF ATLANTANS REMEMBER LIPTON

Friday recalled the visit of the sea-loving sportsman.

"He came," Ralph Ragan reminded, "accompanied by an Englishman who attended to all his personal affairs such as letter writing and appointment making. He was neither a companion to Sir Thomas, nor a servant."

Not servant by any means, although he showed a keen preference for hotels rather than to stay at our house."

Sir Thomas, Mr. Ragan recalled, was a treasure trove of adventurous and amusing stories, some of which he would spin at an evening with a circle of keenly interested guests sitting about.

He could always hold the center of the stage at such gatherings," Mr. Ragan said. "He had a new story for every occasion, and he was always smiling, in a jocular mood, ready to amuse or to tease."

Among those he met while a visitor at the old Ragan home was an Atlanta woman whom Sir Thomas never forgot. Every Christmas since his visit to this city, the English yachtsman would send an ornate Christmas card with his seasonal greetings. Lady Friday recalled him vividly, but declined to reminisce upon his visit other than to say he found him one of the most pleasant men she had ever met.

WORLD'S BEST LOSER
WON WORLD'S APPLAUSE
BOSTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Sir Thomas Lipton, who slipped quietly into his last harbor today, may well go down in history as the world's best loser.

Fifty times Sir Thomas led expeditions across the Atlantic in vain quest of the America's cup. How many millions of dollars he devoted in an effort to lift the token of international yachting supremacy probably only his closest associates know. The cup itself, bottomlessly symbolic of the golden stream poured over the Atlantic by the 51-year-old Irish sportsman, originally cost only a hundred guineas. It has been estimated that his five ventures covering a period of 30 years cost Sir Thomas $10,000,000. Had death not intervened that sum might have been further swelled.

Last year, when his fifth Shamrock went down to defeat off Newport, decisively humbled by Harold S. Vanderbilt, Enterprise, Sir Thomas was disappointed but not discouraged. There would be a Shamrock VI, he said. Plans were formulated during the past few months to challenge for a race next year, but they were recently put off because it was felt a new ship could not be built and made ready at such short notice.

NEW YORK MOURNS
DEATH OF 'BEST LOSER'
NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Sir Thomas Lipton, the "world's best loser," who died today in London, had as many mourners on the sidewalks of New York as in the austere clubrooms and luxurious office suites of those who understand the fine points of yachting.

He was, in the words of Mayor Walker, "the most popular sportsman of our time, a sterling character and an attractive personality," whose ability to accept defeat after defeat with a smile endeared him to American hearts.

As a boy emigrant, Sir Thomas had romped the streets of New York. In later years he often pointed out the places where he had sought shelter at night, unable to pay for lodgings.

PRESIDENT AND ADAMS DEPLORE LIPTON'S DEATH
WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—President Hoover and a cabinet member to whom Sir Thomas Lipton was "a good old friend" today received with regret the news of his death. Secretary Adams, who in 1929 was chairman of the committee which was defeated by Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV, said Sir Thomas was "a good old friend and I liked him."

New Stage, Screen Programs At Atlanta Theaters Today

Eddie Cantor's newest picture, "Palmy Days," will be seen at Keith's Georgia today as a successor to the zoggle-eyed comic's inaugural, "Whoopee" of last season.

Eddie appears as the unwilling assistant to a game of crooked fortune tellers and spiritualists, planning to wreck a bakery. It is a rowdy comic strip kind of a yarn moving blithely from the phony mystics' holy of holies to the splendor of a futuristic bakery "manned" by an imposing assemblage of Hollywood's most decorative figures. The Ziegfeldian opulence of a swimming pool scene, with a hundred prize bathing beauties competing with equally proud swans for attention.

Sharing the comedy honors with the heady-eyed and amiable Cantor is elongated Charlotte Greenwood. Eddie sings many songs his. The most popular will probably be his "Yes, Yes, 'Bend Down, Sister' and 'Goose Pimples' are among the snappy ones.

An extraordinary vaudeville bill is promised for this week. Eddie Stanley, acting as master of ceremonies and doing his pet act, "Just a Jester," presents the headliner known as "Youngsters of Yesterday," a group made up entirely of the stars of 1911, all of them being from 61 to 80 years young. The blackfaced boy with his little red sweater, Paul Mall, and Chaney and Fox complete the bill. Another of those interesting football pictures are on the program.

FOX HAS "THE SPIDER."
MYSTIFYING THRILLER
It isn't often that the talking picture producers favor the great American audience with a picture as thrilling, as mystifying and as astounding as "The Spider," which is the attraction on the new program opening today at the Fox theater. It is proclaimed as perhaps the spookiest of all spooky mystery stories.

The scene is in a theater where a great stage magician is putting on a magic and mind reading act. A murderer is committed in the midst of the performance, one of the audience being shot while the lights are out. Suspected by the police as the criminal, the magician is allowed, nevertheless, to try, with his tricks and his spiritualistic art, to find the true murderer. He must be in the theater, since no one has been allowed to leave.

As the mind reader feels his mental way along row after row of spell-bound audience, seeking the man whose mind is trembling under its guilty knowledge, the scene becomes one of the most enthralling the screen has yet given us.

Colonial Dames of Seventeenth Century To Hold Organization Meeting Nov. 17

Atlanta Chapter Colonial Dames of the Seventeenth Century will hold an organization meeting at 2 o'clock Tuesday, November 17, at the home of Mrs. John Marshall Slaton on Andrews drive. Mrs. Patrick Bray, organizing president for Georgia, announces the new date for the meeting which was scheduled for the first week in October, but was postponed on account of the illness of the national registrar. The complete roster of charter members will be included in the constitution and by-laws which will be printed immediately following the meeting. Papers that are completed and in the hands of Mrs. Bray up to and including November 10 will be embraced in the charter roll if accepted by the national society. The charter roll will number 70 members. Mrs. Bray has been honored by the national society by the appointment to the position of vice president general for Georgia of the Colonial Dames of the Seventeenth Century, an honor which she is well qualified to bear. She is descended from distinguished ancestry and has had much experience as a leader in various societies. Mrs. Bray has also been appointed president of the Atlanta chapter, an office which holds good for a two-year period.

WIFE PRESERVERS

The outside leaves of greens are richer in vitamins than the inner ones, therefore don't waste them. They may be used for cream soups if for nothing else.

Lillian Mae Pattern

Pattern 2203. The popular alliance of two colors, and the very smart new puffed sleeves are exemplified in this delightful day-time frock of black and green crepe. The deep, slender pointed vest, slightly draped at the neckline gives a decided slender effect and the upward curve of the skirt seam joining it, stimulates the lovely jacket mode. You'll like, too, brown with rust or green, and wine red with pink. Pattern 2203 may be ordered only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 3-7-8 yards of 39-inch fabric, 5-8 yard of 32-inch contrasting. Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. Be sure to state size wanted. Send for the Fall and Winter Catalog. It features the newest in afternoon, sports and house dresses, lin-

Culbertson on Contract

BY ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

Exploring the Roads to Game

Whenever I speak or write on Contract Bridge I always emphasize the vital importance of that cornerstone of sound bidding, the Approach principle. This means that in hands containing a choice between the Opening bid of a suit and notrump, the suit—where it is only a four-card minor—should first be bid. Notrump bids in the Approach-Forcing system are an end and not a means to an end. By bidding suits rather than notrump, the notrump bid which does not increase the contract may always be used to temper the bidding of a partner and keep the contract at a makeable stage. By showing the possibilities of game at suit bids the possibilities of game at notrump are in no wise excluded, but the chance to play for game on the safer trump declaration is also given. Edward W. Faith, a prominent Contract player of Mobile, Ala., sent me the hand below:

North and South not vulnerable. East and West vulnerable.

♠ A 8 5 3
 ♥ 10 8 5 3
 ♦ J 7 4
 ♣ A K 3

♠ K Q J 7
 ♥ A J 6
 ♦ K 9 8
 ♣ 10 9 8

The Bidding:
(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South West North East
 Pass 1♥ Pass 2♠(1)
 Pass 5♠(2) Pass 6♠

1—East with 3-1-2 honor-tricks is justified in making a Forcing Takeout. The hand contains no promise of Slam unless West is much stronger than his Opening bid would indicate, but does afford practical certainty of game if the best bid on the combined hands can be found. 2—West has four full Raises in support of his partner's Takeout. He therefore bids five spades. Played at spades, the hand presents absolutely no difficulties. East and West must make their contract. The hand, however, was played in a duplicate match and at another table the players had not become converted to the advantages of the Approach principle. There, as before, West opened the bidding with one heart, but East, instead of exploring the possibilities of game at a suit make jumped at once to three notrump. This bid, it is true, is justified on the honor-tricks held if there were no other course available, but why risk disaster when safety is so clearly indicated? Against a notrump declaration, South opened his fourth best diamond. East won with the Ace, then cashed four rounds of clubs and three rounds of hearts, but did not take another trick. The Ace of spades and the Knave of hearts

THE SURPRISE HAYSTACK. BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

In helping others there is joy. Wherein you'll find is no alloy.

—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Little Chief Hare and Mrs. Little Chief were two very busy little people. They worked hard and steadily, for this was a perfect day for haying and they were making the most of it. From the rock slide over to the tip of meadow they ran, cut their little "un-

"I wish it was ours," said she.

dles of grasses and other plants, brought them back to the rock slide and spread them to dry. Jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun poured down his warmest rays to dry the hay properly and so did his part to help these busy little people.

It was hard work, for it was quite a distance from where the hay was cut to where it was spread to dry, and the little bundles were small, for such small mouths as these little hay-makers possessed could carry only small bundles. This meant many, many trips, and though each took a turn at keeping watch and so had a chance to rest, there came a time when it seemed to them that they simply couldn't make another trip.

"My legs ache," declared Little Chief.

"Mine, too," replied Mrs. Little Chief.

"I don't like to stop now," said Little Chief, spreading the plants he had just brought.

"Neither do I," replied Mrs. Little Chief, "but I think we better. The sensible thing to do is to take a good rest now. We will be able to work all the faster and better after it."

"You are quite right, my dear, as usual," was Little Chief's prompt response. "We were up early this morning and I for one would like a nap. What do you say to going home for a nap and working hard afterward?"

Mrs. Little Chief carefully inspected the drying hay. "The sun is hot," said she, "and it isn't wise to work during the hottest part of the day. We've done a good morning's work and a nap will do both of us good. I wish we had twice as much hay, but we have done pretty well as it is. Come on."

She led the way and Little Chief followed. They disappeared among the rocks of the slide down under which they had their home. It was two hours later when they reappeared. The first thing they did was to hurry to see how the hay was drying. Little Chief led the way. When he came in sight of the place he stopped abruptly with a funny little bark.

"What is it, my dear?" inquired Mrs. Little Chief anxiously as she hurried up.

"Look!" That was all Little Chief said, but it was enough. Mrs. Little Chief looked and she, too, gave a funny little bark of surprise.

"What—what do you make of it? Where did that come from? Whose is it? Who put it there? And what they do it for?" The questions tumbled from Mrs. Little Chief so fast that her tongue almost tripped over itself.

There, just to one side of their own carefully spread hay was a big stack of freshly cut hay. That is, it was a big stack to such little people as they. Hastily they looked in all directions, but no one was to be seen. Then cautiously they approached the big stack and walked around it. There was twice as much in it as they had been able to cut with all their work that morning. Their eyes sparkled as they inspected it. Then Mrs. Little Chief sighed.

"If it were ours," said she.

"Well, if it isn't ours, whose is it?" demanded Little Chief.

"I wish I knew," replied Mrs. Little Chief. She once more climbed up on a rock for a careful look all around.

"It is the biggest haystack I've ever seen," declared Little Chief, continuing to walk around it. "It ought to be spread. It will spoil left like that."

"You better leave it alone," warned Mrs. Little Chief sharply.

Miss Mary Candler Feted at Parties

Miss Mary Candler, popular bride-elect, will be the honor guest today at the luncheon at which Miss Doris Fulton will entertain at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel. Covers will be placed for Misses Candler, Eugenia Candler, Martha and Helen Candler, Rena Candler, Mary Frances Gay, Mrs. M. F. Graves and the hostess. Miss Louisa Candler was hostess at dinner last evening at Callanwolde, the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard Candler, on Briarcliff road, honoring Miss Candler and her fiancé, R. A. Edmondson Jr. A mound of pink roses formed an artistic centerpiece for the table and in the center of the mound was raised a miniature bride's bouquet showered with tiny ribbons. The color motif of pink was reflected in the other table appointments. Miss Candler received her guests wearing a gown of pink tulle, cut on modish lines and featuring a flared skirt. She was assisted in entertaining by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Candler. Covers were placed for members of the Candler-Edmondson wedding party. Mrs. Harris Robinson was hostess yesterday at a luncheon at the Atlanta Athletic Club in compliment to Miss Candler. Covers were placed for Misses Candler, Eugenia Candler, Martha and Helen Candler, Mary Frances Gay, Louisa Candler, Sara Edmondson, Rena Candler, Martha Powell, Mesdames Edgar Dunlap Jr., Ashley Deane, Mrs. Ashby Taylor, Mrs. Stockard, Edgar Chambers Jr., Cody Laird Jr., Irving Schewpe and the hostess.

The Misses Peeples Are Pictured.

A charming photograph of Misses Helen Peeples and Jean Peeples was published last Sunday in the Washington Post, the smartly gowned sisters being bent upon a shopping tour in the national capital. They are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Howell Peeples, former Atlantans, and have often visited here as guests of their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. J. Carroll Payne, at their Peachtree road residence.

The Misses Peeples are nieces of Mrs. Mary Peeples Coledge, Henry Peeples, Thomas J. Peeples and Edwin A. Peeples. Miss Helen Peeples spent a fortnight in June at Sea Island Beach, Ga., with her cousins, Misses Helen Hill Smith and Laura Payne Smith, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Smith Jr., and was greatly admired and quite popular during her stay at the seashore.

WHITE FAWN

by Olive Higgins Rea

INSTALLMENT XXX.

Lisa felt a flooding wave of joy as she counted the half-dozen pages which she drew from the two remaining envelopes. They were covered with Barry's fine handwriting. He described bits of the journey, fellow-passengers, scenery as it slipped by—brief ephemeral flashes of the running panorama of his consciousness. Home-ly details appeared in the same paragraph with an outburst of poetic beauty.

Every paragraph eventually swerved to Lisa, like a steel needle in a compass to the north star. He could see nothing beautiful but in reference to Lisa. He could see no other woman without comparing her, to her disadvantage, to Lisa. Barry possessed a genius for making Lisa feel of importance in everything he thought of, or did, or saw.

After she had read the letters twice (certain parts three times), she burned them in the open fire near by. Lisa felt that Barry was free from any wrong in his love for her because he was free from any sense of it. Conventional standards had never bound him. Barry's father had been in the diplomatic service. Barry had not grown up in any one environment. He had lived under various governments and social systems. His own conscience had always seemed to him the wisest guide. He was the antithesis of a ritualist in all things. One law alone bound him—the law of kindness. He felt no gnawing sense of guilt in loving Lisa. He did not feel he was robbing Rupert. Lisa's confidence had been the cause of Rupert's non-response to his touch. What was Rupert's Barry had no intention of disturbing. He had tried to convince Lisa that she, too, had no guilt. She was robbing no other woman.

Lisa was still filled with a sense of relief amounting almost to elation when, ten minutes later, she decided to walk across the common and drop in and see Grandmother Vale and Charlotte. They would be able to throw more light upon this Dan Regan.

But when Lisa approached Grandmother Vale's brownstone front, she didn't mount the steps. Why not mount Dr. Warburton's steps next door instead? Dr. Warburton could tell her more about this Dan Regan than any one in Boston. Of course she must disguise the purpose of her call. She rang Dr. Warburton's bell. Lisa knew Dr. Warburton both socially and professionally. She knew him officially, too. She had served on the board of managers of his hospital—his hospital, often so called, because he performed many of his operations there, and filled the role of chief surgeon, patron saint, and guiding spirit.

There was an effort under way to raise a fund for a new operating-wing at the hospital. It was to be named the Warburton Wing. Lisa was on the committee to raise money for this fund. A day or two before she had received an anonymous check of $25,000 for the wing. "From patient of Dr. Warburton, with deep gratitude," the accompanying card had said. Lisa decided to drop in and tell Dr. Warburton about it as she passed his door on her way to Grandmother Vale's. It would be the most natural thing in the world to do.

Lisa heard steps in the hall. She turned and raised her eyes with a smile. But it was not Dr. Warburton who stood upon the threshold of the office. It was a tall, lean, dark young man with black hair and black brows. "Oh, I'm sorry," he exclaimed. "I didn't know any one was here. I want to look up something in the files." He crossed the room to a tier of oak drawers, drew one out, extracted a sheet of paper and stood silently gazing at it, apparently oblivious of Lisa as she studied his profile. A large nose, a firm chin, one of those foreheads slightly depressed in the center so that the brows rose like low hills.

When he had finished with the paper, he replaced it, and, without a glance at Lisa, crossed to Dr. Warburton's flat-topped desk in the bay window, sat down, pulled out another drawer, extracted another sheet of paper from another file, and fell to studying that. Lisa sat and waited, as she studied his profile. A large nose, a firm chin, one of those foreheads slightly depressed in the center so that the brows rose like low hills.

When he had finished with it, he replaced it in the file, and turned to Lisa.

"Had you an appointment?" he inquired with the professional manner he had used over the telephone.

"Oh, really?" And at that he did stand up at last. "Have you come to see Dr. Warburton?"

"Yes, I have," Lisa replied. "On business."

"If you'll tell me your business and name, I'll go up and see if Dr. Warburton will see you."

"How kind! Thank you so much," said Lisa, her eyes bright with the smile she couldn't completely conceal.

"My business is the new wing at the hospital, and my name is Vale."

"You don't mean—you can't be—are you Mrs. Rupert Vale?"

She nodded. "Yes I am."

There was a pause.

"I'm Dr. Warburton's assistant. My name is Regan."

"Oh, really?" Lisa showed no sign of ever having heard of him before.

"I'm glad to meet you, Dr. Regan," Dan frowned. "I'm the one who ran over your daughter's dog."

"Oh, are you? Well, we don't think the accident was your fault in the least, Dr. Regan."

Dan's frown deepened. "I'm the one who sat up so late talking with your daughter after a dance."

"Oh, did you? Really? When?"

"Why, she said you knew!" ejaculated Dan. "She said she told you about me."

"They had met then since day before yesterday? Or were in correspondence?"

"Oh, yes, I do remember now!" Lisa exclaimed. "Fania did tell me about a doctor she'd met, and about a talk she had had at her grandmother's one night. How interesting to be a doctor." Lisa went on brightly. "It is a wonderful calling, I think."

"I don't think it is any finer than anything else," replied Dan. "Its measure of success is different, that's all. I'm just as cold-blooded about wanting to succeed as if I'd gone into law or business. A sentimental attitude about doctors always gets my goat."

"Gets my goat! It was an expression that always got Lisa's. But she didn't show a trace of irritation. Just then she heard the stairway in the hall creaking under the descending weight of Dr. Warburton's foot."

"I should like to have you come out some evening and dine with us, Dr. Regan," she said, "and we'll continue our discussion."

"I'm afraid I can't," Dan replied. "I don't do anything in the social line."

"Oh, it won't be a social event. Just a family dinner. Some night when my daughter is to be home."

"I'm afraid I can't," Dan repeated. Lisa ignored the repetition. He was probably shy. "How is Saturday for you—a week from tomorrow night?" she pursued. It was seldom Lisa pursued.

"I always try to spend Saturday nights with my folks," said Dan.

"Folks! Gets my goat! How the little telltale signs will crop out! Sitting while she had stood! Inclined to be combative in an argument. Anything but courteous in receiving her dinner invitation."

"What night will be most convenient?" she inquired, showing no indication but that she thought his manners perfect. She would manage to have Morris Haverford drop in for dinner also, if possible. The comparison between the two men would be striking. But her plan of campaign was defeated by Dan's reply.

"I'm afraid I can't come any night just at present. I'm very sorry."

He didn't give her a chance even to reply. "Well, another time. Never in her life had a dinner invitation of Lisa's been treated in this manner."

"Well, I'm sorry, that's too bad," she laughed it off lightly. "My daughter will be sorry, too."

"Oh, Fania'll understand."

His familiar use of Fania's name and his presumption that she would require no explanation, filled Lisa with more indignation than the refusal of her dinner invitation. She shrugged now. "Will she? You seem to be very sure."

"I am sure," he said simply. Then abruptly, "I'll go and speak to Dr. Warburton. He's upstairs some-where."

Continued Monday.

THE GUMPS—HELP WANTED

I JUST COULDN'T HELP LAUGHING OUT LOUD WHEN WE PASSED TOM. CARR ON THE STREET YESTERDAY—IT MUST BURN HIM UP TO SEE HENRIETTA AND ME TOGETHER—AND AFTER CALLING ME AN OLD MAN—

WELL—IF HE'D HAD SOME OF THE OLD MAN'S EXPERIENCE HE PROBABLY NEVER WOULD HAVE LOST THAT FACTORY—AND THE QUESTION NOW IS WHAT SHALL I DO WITH THE FACTORY? WHO WILL TAKE TOM CARR'S PLACE AT THE HELM—WHO WILL FILL HIS SHOES?

POOR OLD ANDY—HOW HE WOULD LIKE TO HAVE THAT FACTORY—AND NOW I'D LIKE TO GIVE IT TO HIM—IT'S AN ADMIRABLE ORGANIZATION—WITH WORLD WIDE DISTRIBUTION—THE FINEST OF MODERN MACHINERY—BUT WHAT COULD ANDY DO WITH IT?

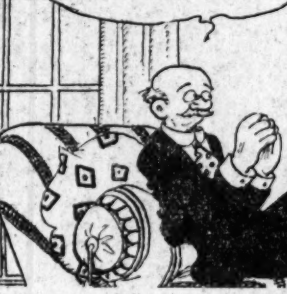

POOR ANDY—HE'S GOOD HEARTED—MEANS WELL—BUT WHEN WILL HE EVER LEARN? EVEN WITH ALL THAT EQUIPMENT WHAT COULD HE DO? IT WOULD BE LIKE SENDING AN UNTRAINED SOLDIER TO WAR—GIVE HIM A SWORD OF THE MOST DAZZLING FINISH—WITH THE KEENEST EDGE AND THE FINEST TEMPER—BUT WHAT GOOD DOES IT DO HIM—IF HE HAS NEVER LEARNED HOW TO FENCE?

MOON MULLINS—MAMIE'S RECOMMENDATION

GOOD MORNING, MR. MULLINS. BEFORE I EMPLOY YOU, MAY I ASK A FEW QUESTIONS? FIRST HAVE YOU ANY MONEY OF YOUR OWN OR DO YOU EXPECT TO INHERIT ANY?

NOPE, MR. PUMPKIN, ALL I INHERITED FROM MY OLD MAN IS A CAPACITY FOR HARD WORK—AND IF I DO SAY SO MYSELF A RIGHT BRIGHT MIND.

WELL, MR. PUMPKIN'LL FIND HIS CAPACITY FOR HARD WORK'S JUST AS GOOD AS NEW—HE AIN'T EVER USED IT ANY.

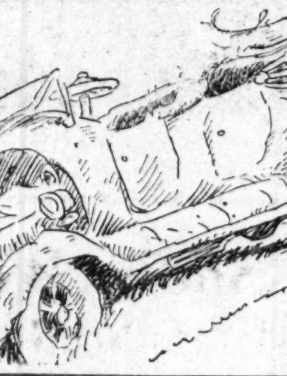

AND THAT BRIGHT MIND OF HIS—WHOOOPS! ANY HONEST MIND-READER TAKE ONE LOOK AT THAT NUMSKULL AND GIVE HIM HIS MONEY BACK—

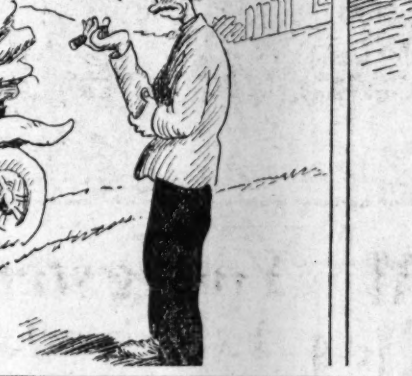

GASOLINE ALLEY—WHY NOT?

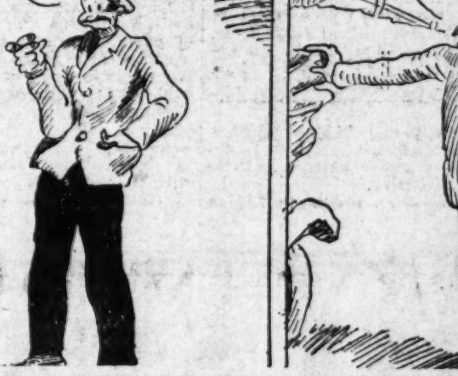

THIS TRADING TRIP SO FAR HAS CERTAINLY BEEN ONE GRAND FLOP. I'M 200 MILES FROM HOME AND MY TRADING STOCK IS IN THE DITCH.

I'VE HAD OFFERS—EIGHT DOLLARS—THIRD INTEREST IN A COW—BICYCLE—REAL ESTATE. BUT WHAT'S THE USE.

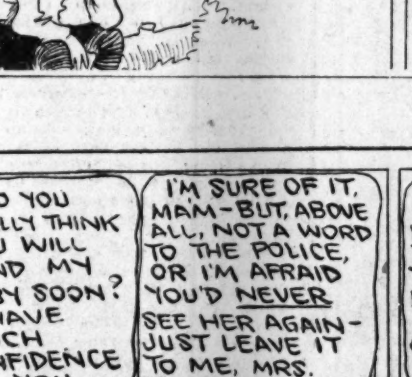

IF I WAS SURE I WOULDN'T GET HOMESICK FOR THE OLD BUS I'D LEAVE HER RIGHT HERE.

SMITTY—MANY HAPPY RETURNS OF THE DAY

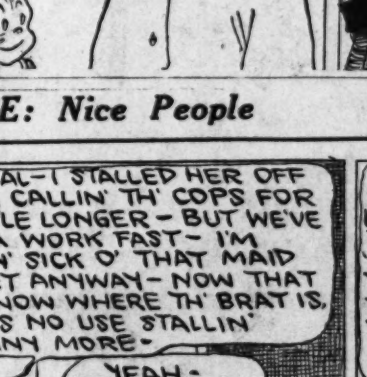

POOR KID! BEING LOST IN THESE WOODS IS JUST STARTING TO GET HIM—MAYBE I CAN HELP THE POOR LITTLE FELLA A BIT

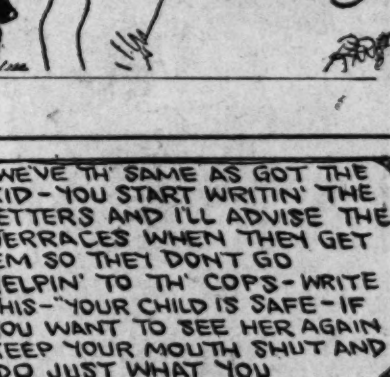

AM, I'VE JUST FIGURED IT ALL OUT, KID—WE'RE STARTING FOR THE CABIN WHERE GEORGE, THE INDIAN GUIDE LIVES, THIS AFTERNOON

I'VE GOT IT DOPED OUT WHERE THE PLACE IS AND I'LL LEAD YE RIGHT UP TO THE DOOR AND WHEN WE GET THERE WE'LL YELL 'HELLO GEORGE'

ALLO MEESTER BAILEY!

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Nice People

DO YOU REALLY THINK YOU WILL FIND MY BABY SOON? I HAVE SUCH CONFIDENCE IN YOU—

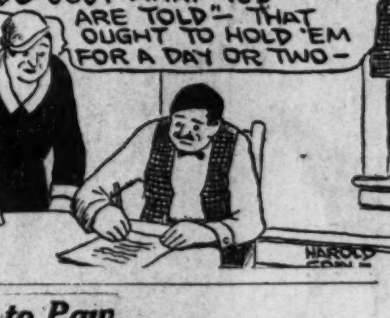

I'M SURE OF IT, MAM—BUT ABOVE ALL, NOT A WORD TO THE POLICE, OR I'M AFRAID YOU'D NEVER SEE HER AGAIN—JUST LEAVE IT TO ME, MRS. TERRACE—

THAT DUMB BELL—WELL, I KNOW WHERE HER KID IS, NOW—THAT'S THE MAIN THING—GETTIN' HER OUGHT TO BE EASY—IF SHE JUST LEAVES IT ALL TO ME, EVERYTHING WILL BE GREAT—BUT WE'VE GOT TO WORK FAST—

WELL, AL—I STALLED HER OFF FROM CALLIN' TH' COPS FOR A LITTLE LONGER—BUT WE'VE GOTTA WORK FAST—I'M GETTIN' SICK O' THAT MAID RACKET ANYWAY—NOW THAT WE KNOW WHERE TH' BRAT IS, THERE'S NO USE STALLIN' ANY MORE—

WINNIE WINKLE THE BREADWINNER: It's the Same Difference to Paw

A FINE LOT OF SIGHTS YER PAW SHOWED US YESTERDAY, WINNIE! HIS IDEA OF POINTS OF INTEREST IN 'TOWN IS TH' FIRE-HOUSE, POOL-ROOM AN' STREET CORNER WHERE HE CAROUSES!

YES, WHAT WE WANTED TO SEE WAS TH' HISTORICAL SIGHTS OF THIS TOWN!!

MUH ??? WHY DIDN'T Y' SAY SO??

WHY, ONLY THIS MORNIN' A WOMAN ON TH' STREET WAS YELLIN' HER HEAD OFF 'CAUSE SOMEONE STOLE HER PURSE!!

WELL, WHAT'S HISTORICAL ABOUT THAT??

OH—I THOUGHT YOU SAID 'HYSTERICAL'!!

Mercer Eleven, Crippled by Loss of Smith, Faces Stetson Today

CARDS EARNED SECOND GAME, COLLINS SAYS

Hallahan and Martin Collaborate To Bring St. Louis Triumph.

By Eddie Collins.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 2.—Stranger as it may sound, today's defeat at the hands of the Cardinals was not one of those kind that a ball player would say hurts. We figure that in any game that you can't score a single run, you have not much chance to win.

So I am very ready and willing to say that a better club beat us today, and with it deserves the victory. Quite naturally two Cards stood out head and shoulders above them all.

Pepper Martin and Bill Hallahan. Perhaps it is because I belong to the old school of ball playing, when the power of might and long hitting did not hold sway, and when it was necessary to bring into play speed, base stealing and a little bit of head-work now and then to score a run, that I can't help but admire even in an opponent the work of the fleet Pepper Martin in this second game.

PLAYER'S BALL PLAYER.

Nothing else in the world won for the Cardinals today but Pepper's speed and daring on the bases. He is my idea of a ball player's ball player.

True enough the men following him in the batting order co-operated with him very well. Without interfering with Mickey Cochrane in attempting to throw both to second and third, when Martin successfully negotiated the theft of those bases, the Cardinals batter made it pretty tough each time for our catcher. And Martin hit his way to the bases also.

The rest of the Card outfit hustled, too. In fact, in a couple of instances, there was an obvious difference in our clubs. But any time a club is as completely suppressed as Letty Hallahan had us today, a team is apt to look bad.

HALLAHAN WILD.

If it had not been for Hallahan's wildness, we would not have had a snow ball's chance at any time as far as our hitting went. Three widely scattered singles is all we could accumulate. But thanks to Letty's generosity in handing out passes, we had several opportunities to score and the game was in the balance up to the very last out.

I do not know whether it was obvious to the fans, but now that the game is over, it is a fact that Hallahan employed quite a different style in the last two innings.

I am inclined to give him credit for being good and smart, and I firmly believe this deviation from the way he had worked in the fore part of the game is what won for him. He was staggering badly in the ninth, when two bases on balls put him in a tough spot. But he worked slowly, pitched

THREE FACTORS WIN FOR CARDS, FRISCH ASSERTS

Hallahan's Pitching, Martin's Base Running and Bottomley Lauded.

By Frankie Frisch.

Captain and Second Baseman of the Cardinals, in His Seventh World Series.

(Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 2.—I knew we could do it, and we're all congratulating Bill Hallahan, Pepper Martin and Jim Bottomley. Hallahan was just wild enough to add to his effectiveness, and calm enough to come through gloriously in several jams.

Bill pitched one of his best games. He gave only three hits, each in a different inning. He was effective because he had great speed, a fine breaking fast curve, and slow curve. That his delivery was baffling to the Athletics is shown by his number of strike outs. He had eight, well sprinkled throughout the nine innings.

Hallahan's greatest help came from Martin, whose terrific speed and alertness carried him to third base in the second inning, placing him in position to score on Jimmy Wilson's fly, and also helped him to get to third base in the seventh inning. Then his speed again came into action, for Manager Street put on the squeeze play, and Pepper rushed home to score on Charley Gilbert's hit to Farnshaw.

BOTTOMLEY'S CATCH.

After that peculiar play in the ninth inning, when it looked as if the game were over on Moore's strike out until Wilson dropped the ball to fill the bases, Bottomley came to Hallahan's assistance with a splendid catch of Bishop's foul fly to end the game.

Earnshaw pitched fine baseball. He allowed us only six hits. He beat us twice last year, but we had a better pitcher on the hill today, a pitcher who will be in another game against the Athletics in the near future.

Our fielding, barring the excusable error which was charged to Wilson in that ninth inning mix up, again was perfect. We did not have many difficult plays, but the few that came our way were spotlessly executed. One of the best, before Bottomley's catch, was Watkins' running snare of Cochrane's long drive to right field in the sixth inning.

NEW BALL CLUB.

The Cardinals looked to be a far different ball club in this second chapter. They were getting better pitching, and, once in front, they dug in and played with much more spirit than they showed in the opener. They had the keener attack and the better pitching in the battle that tied up the big show to carry the war on to Philadelphia for a Monday start.

The fact that Earnshaw was bowled over has helped a lot. You can stand facing some star like Grove, but when two stars begin to gang you, it is something else again.

Hallahan will have a much longer period this time than he had a year ago, and his feat of shutting out the Athletics twice in three starts is something to remember anybody by.

The early prediction that the series would be the closest of many years may pay out after all. Hallahan's shut out triumph and Pepper Martin's daily thrusts have changed the outlook, which, after the first game, was bluer than indigo as far as the Red Birds' migration was concerned.

Both teams so far have fielded ably, and Al Simmons has contributed two back-handed running catches that shut off triples. Watkins also robbed Cochrane of a double or triple by hauling a long drive down from the air as the right fielder collided with the stands and bounded back like a rubber ball thrown against concrete.

So far not a misplay has marred the defensive work of the two teams.

WORTH THE PRICE.

Connie Mack said he figured Waite Hoyt would be worth the waiver price if he could win five games for him.

THE TUNE CHANGES.

As Hallahan went moving along, the "St. Louis Blues" gave way to "Hail the Conquering Hero Come."

You could sense the fact that Mr. Hallahan had no idea of blowing up. He kept on bearing down, crowding all he had on every pitch, but he left the left-arm stamina needed to complete the route. He had another slight sinking spell in the seventh, but after that he breezed in.

The bounding antelope who seems about to steal this World Series show from most of the stars is a young fellow named Pepper Martin, better known as the Oklahoma Cyclone. Pepper likes to ride on freight trains in place of Pullmans where the soft padding lets his hide. He has arms like Jack Dempsey, and the heart of a great competitor.

In the first game, Pepper struck back savagely at Grove and got three hits, even in the midst of a losing cause. He came up with one out in the second inning of today's battle. The crowd paid its tribute to a game fighter and a sterling athlete. He obliged by socking a double and then stealing third, as Cochrane's peg was a trifle off.

THE NEEDED TONIC.

That made him. This was the stuff the Cardinals needed, not a good defense but an old-fashioned, headlong attack. And this steal put Martin in position to score a moment later.

In the seventh inning, he opened the pot with a single and then lost no time stealing second. He was well away and traveling at such speed that Cochrane's hurried throw was again off line. An infield out and a squeeze play from Gilbert brought Pepper from third across the plate where he spilled the redoubtable Mickey Cochrane in three or four directions as Earnshaw tried to shut off his second run.

Martin now has five hits for the

ODDS ARE EVEN AS TWO TEAMS AWAIT WHISTLE

With Exception of Center Problem, Bears Are in Fine Shape.

By Herb Clark.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 2.—A stout Mercer eleven, crippled by the loss of Bob Smith, rated Dixie's best center, was ready tonight to stand off the assaults of a squad of invading giants from Stetson University, who arrived here this afternoon in time to throw a scare into Bear supporters in a limbering drill at Centennial stadium.

Tomorrow those Hatters from Florida will take to the turf of that stadium at 3:30 o'clock to see what can be done about stopping the Bears, who have raced through two games and demonstrated real skill and power in the dashes.

The Bears, who have spent most of the week in an experimental work designed to relieve the situation at the center of the line, polished off this afternoon in a pleasing light session. Joe Seryak, 160-pounder who has played second fiddle to "Big Bob" in the pivot post for three years, is taking his big chance seriously. It is his lack of weight which will militate most against him. Tony Long, who was shifted from halfback to center, will see service should the Hatters get Seryak out.

BEARS IN SHAPE.

Harry Lichter, sophomore star, who returned to school this week, and Harold McNabb, stellar varsity guard, will be on hand if necessary.

The Bears, aside from that big question mark at the center of the line, are in fine shape. With Smith in the lineup they would be top-heavy favorites to repeat their 33-0 victory of last year over the Hatters. With Smith out, however, the balance is even. Little edge can be conceded either squad.

The probable lineup follows:

MERCER: Pos. STETSON

Harrison L. E. Clark

Camp L. T. Norton

Pepe L. G. Tharby

Seryak E. G. Namee

Olson E. E. Plate

Rasor E. E. Shabel

Trimmerhauser E. E. Shabel

Walton E. E. Shabel

Hollingsworth E. E. Shabel

Cummins E. E. Shabel

JOLLEY TO PITCH.

While Smead Jolley, White Sox outfielder, was recovering from leg injuries he worked out as a batting practice pitcher and now wants a chance to do mound work. He started in baseball as a pitcher.
